WORDS OF WISDOM. -It is better to wear out than to rust out. -What shadows we are, and what shadows we pursue. -True wisdom, in general, consists in energetic determination. -Be a lamp in the chamber if you cannot be a star in the sky. -It is living twice to be able to enjoy the part portion of life. -There is a certain dignity to be kept up in pleasure as in business. -The one prudence in life is concentration; the one evil is dissipation. -There is one art of which every man should be master: the art of reflection. -Justice is the beginning of political equality, but brotherly love is the completion of it. -Character is higher than intellect. A great soul will be strong to live as well as to think. -Nature has written a letter of credit on some men's faces which is honored everywhere it is presented. -Have the courage to acknowledge your ignorance rather than seek for knowledge under false pretense. -Instruction does not prevent waste of time or mistakes; and mistakes themselves are often the best teachers of all. -Keep your promise to the letter, be prompt and exact, and it will save you much trouble and care through life, and win for you the respect and trust of your friends. -Men who think for themselves do not believe quite so much as those who take what they know from hearsay; but it is very apt to be a better quality of faith.

ACCIDENTS HAPPEN EVERY DAY in the Year. PERRY DAVIS'S PAIN KILLER IS THE GREAT REMEDY FOR DRUGGISTS KEEP IT EVERYWHERE. HERE AT LAST. After Long and Weary Waiting Relief is Brought to Those Who Need it. "Well, Pat," said an Orange Physician to a complaining Irish patient some years ago, "for that pain in your chest you had better go home and put on a mustard plaster. I can't think this minute of anything better." And by the way," added the doctor turning to a friend, "I wish somebody would invent a real good plaster - something actually helpful for such cases as Pat's. Maybe they will sometime, when it is too late for me to use it."

THE FOLLOWING LETTERS TELL THEIR OWN STORY. "VALDOSTA, Georgia, July 20, 1882. "I sold one of your Patent Dust-Proof Cases about ten months ago, and the other day it came back to me with the request to make it wind easier. On examination I found that the stem was rusty, and I inquired into the cause of it. The gentleman stated to me that he was starting some saws when he had lodged in the bend of the river, when his chain caught in a bush and threw his watch into about twelve feet of water, and he was about two hours finding it. When he got it out it was running and he thought all right. In about three months he found that the stem was hard to turn and sent it to me. I can say that the watch is all that the company claims for it, and I recommend it to all railroad and mill men. B. W. BENTLEY."

THE ABOVE WERE VERY SEVERE TESTS, and demonstrate beyond a doubt, that for any reasonable length of time during which watch might be under water it would receive no injury whatever. We make these cases in both gold and silver, and as PERFECTLY DUST-PROOF, STEEL-WINDING WATCH CASE, CHALLENGE THE WORLD TO PRODUCE ITS EQUAL. For sale by all first-class jewelers. April 25, 1883-m.

FARMERS' COLUMN. Farm and Garden Notes. -Never breed from scrub animals. -Don't neglect the vegetable garden. -Are your fences and gates in order? -The best stock is the most valuable. -Poor tools and bad seed are "no good." -It does not take a great deal of slovenly management on an ordinary sized farm to waste $1,000 a year. -Sweet butter cannot be made from cream under which they and thick sour milk have formed. The moment they form it has passed the point of perfection. -Carry horses frequently in spring to aid in removing their old coat. A small quantity of oil meal added to their feed will also greatly assist in its removal. Discontinue the use of this when the working season begins. -A lamb saved now may be worth dollars next fall. What is called "bad luck" in raising lambs is sometimes bad management, or no management at all. If the sheep are healthy, nearly every one well formed should be raised, and nothing pays the owner better than close, personal attention to them. -A writer says that he has never failed to cure garget by the use of beans. He feeds one pint of bean meal, mixed with other meal, for four successive days, and has found that quantity sufficient to cure the worst cases. He thinks if cows were fed with bean meal several times a year they would never be troubled with garget. -A French chemist claims to have discovered a method of overcoming the danger threatening vineyards from the ravages of the phylloxera. His process is to inoculate the vines with the phenol poison. The phylloxera do not attack plants thus treated, and are exterminated for want of food. The vines are in no way injured by the inoculated process. -It is no rare thing for those having cows to sell to allow them to go unutilized for a time or two before selling. In order to improve the buyer with a well filled udder. This is both rascally and cruel. Although we have never heard of the law in this country interfering in such matters, in England recently a cow dealer was fined twenty dollars and cost for an offense of this kind. -Any cause that interferes with the condition of the cow after calving may produce milk fever. Exposure, too much exercise, or nervous excitement are sufficient to bring on an attack, and a recovery is rare. It is the "cause of prevention" in this case, as in many others, that is worth the pound of cure. Keep the animal quiet for a week before and after calving, and nurse her well. -Corn which is hilled will blow down more readily than that which has level culture. This can be accounted for by the fact that corn roots run near the surface, and when hills are made they are confined to the small space covered by the hill, while in level culture the roots run from one row to the other, thus enabling the corn to stand strong, as nature intended, and in no way liable to be blown down except by winds of unusual violence. -Nothing is more generally useful on a farm than a sweep or tread horse power. It can with proper machinery be applied to many purposes, sawing wood, cutting feed in winter, and grinding grain for stock. A good horse-power will thus save each year many times the interest on its cost and with proper care will last many years. A small steam engine will answer the same purpose just as well, but most of the farmers have horses that must be fed whether worked or not. -When farmers learn from experience that by hounding their manure and other rubbish working it over, mixing with absorbents such as manure, earth, red dirt, leaves, etc., to take up the liquid and ammonia set free, its value is double what it now is, and, too, at an expense much less than the same amount of plant food could be obtained in an artificial fertilizer, a new era will have been reached in agriculture, and we shall see the fertility of the old farms brought back to where they were fifty years ago. -The water which can be gathered from the roofs of barns and sheds need not be sheltered stock will, if carefully saved, be sufficient for the stock through the year. To accomplish this the cistern should be a large one to hold the surplus of a wet season till a time of scarcity. With a basement barn the cistern should be in the corner where the bank of earth against the wall is deepest, to prevent freezing. Then with a faucet in the lower part of the cistern a continuous small stream can be kept running, adapting the flow of the number of animals, so that the tub shall never be empty and never or seldom run over. This plan is a convenient one in winter, and more than repays the expense by saving manure, besides the greater thrift of the stock. Animal Exercise. The exercise of animals ensures a superior quality of flesh. If so, how is it that the best of Scotch highland and Welsh mountain black cattle is more delicate and of a finer flavor than that of those reared and fed on lowlands, and brings 2cts more per pound in the market? It is chiefly because they take more exercise while reared and fattened, which acts upon the muscles, and increases the tenderness and juiciness. The mutton of the Welsh mountain sheep is superior to all others, even the famous Southdown, that it is all engaged beforehand by private parties at a high price and it is never offered to the public in market. It is true that the pasture they feed on is a sort of aromatic salt, and assist in helping to flavor the mutton; but still we think the exercise is an important factor in contributing to its superiority. The venison of wild deer is much more gamey than that of those which are kept tame in large herds in gentlemen's parks, and the flavor of wild game, partridges, and quail is much preferred to that of domestic fowls, on account of its gamey quality. Poultry, when closely confined to fatten, instead of distributing the fat in small streaks through the flesh, lay it up in lumps on different parts of the body, leaving the flesh flabby and comparatively tasteless. We contend for giving for giving all animals plenty of fresh air and a reasonable amount of exercise, in addition to wholesome food and pure water. Then they thrive and turn out a good and profitable quality of meat. Agriculturalist.

Rich Pennsylvania Senators. Eckley B. Cox is supposed to be worth $5,000,000. Next comes John F. Bayburn, who, like Cox, obtained his wealth by inheritance, and is said to be a triple millionaire. The youthful Senator Adams, of Philadelphia, perhaps comes next. He, too, like Bayburn and Cox, has inherited a bank account, which is estimated by those who know at $2,000,000. Low Emery, the oil king, is said to be worth $500,000, although he is called a millionaire. Hall, of Elk, has $250,000 invested in lumbering and other enterprises. Wallace, the golden-haired Senator from Clearfield, strolls from side to side of the Senate chamber, conscious that, if not a millionaire, he is worth many thousand dollars. Dill, of Erie, is worth $300,000. Steinhart has several farms in Lancaster county, and is worth about $150,000. McNeal, of Allegheny, Laird, of Westmoreland, and perhaps one or two others, are estimated at $100,000. Tom Cooper, despite his great reputation as a campaign mathematician, is said to be worth only $40,000. Lee, who has the reputation of spending his money as fast as he gets it and enjoying life generally, is said to be worth about $10,000, and John Stewart, the great leader of the Independents, would tip the financial scale at about the same figure. -Exchange.
