War the Doctor Was Disgraced, and what Might have Been Done without him. "Well, wife," said Dr. E.—as he entered his house which was situated in a cozy village in Central New York, "I have got back from a long and dreary ride away down among the mountains, and all to no purpose whatever. The messenger said the man wouldn't live till morning, when the fact is he had only an ordinary attack of colic. If the doctor had only had sense enough to put a BENSON'S CAPSICINE PODOU PLASTER on his stomach he would have been all right in an hour or two. But some folks are slow to learn. The rapidly increasing use of Benson's plaster proves this beyond question, and the good doctors are certain to be saved much of their needless toil. In all diseases capable of being affected by a plaster Benson's acts efficiently and at once. The genuine have the word CAPSICINE cut in the center. Price 25 cents. An Old Soldier's EXPERIENCE. "I wish to express my appreciation of the valuable qualities of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral as a cough remedy. While with Churchill's army, just before the battle of Vicksburg, I contracted a severe cold, which terminated in a dangerous cough. I found no relief till on our march we came to a country store, where, on asking for some remedy, I was urged to try AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. I did so, and was rapidly cured. Since then I have kept the PECTORAL constantly by me, for family use, and I have found it to be an invaluable remedy for throat and lung diseases. Thousands of testimonials certify to the prompt cure of all bronchial and lung affections, by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. Being very palatable, the youngest children take it readily. PREPARED BY Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass. Sold by all Druggists.

FARMERS' COLUMN. Thoroughbred Stock. The value of thoroughbred cattle consists in their ability to transmit to their offspring their own qualities. Having been bred in one line for hundreds of years, their blood is so strong that they are able to perpetuate with certainty whatever characteristics they possess. If these characteristics are of a desirable nature the producing of them on their offspring will be just as certain as though they were of a desirable nature. Bearing this in mind, it is not surprising to find that those who are in the habit of breeding thoroughbred cattle, or in buying a bull to use upon stock already owned, search for animals fifty or one hundred dollars cheaper than the quality he wants is worth. An animal to be valuable as a stock animal, must have individual merit as well as a pedigree tracing back to valuable ancestry. If the animals themselves are thin behind the shoulder, contracted around the heart, with long bony necks, cut up high in the flank, split up high behind and with a ham like a mosquito, it will be impossible to breed good stock from them, even if a hundred years, in fact it will be harder to breed good stock from this class of stock, than from the cattle that are classed as natives. It is a fair question for a breeder to ask himself as to how he can make the most money in breeding cattle, and at the same time have a herd of genuine merit. In purchasing, the question would naturally arise as to what Hereford cows are the best. When they will produce a calf yearly worth $400; this is a medium price. Many Herefords raised in 1881 and 1882 have brought much larger sums, but cattle men on the Western plains have come to breeders and bought numbers of serviceable yearling bulls for $400, to take out upon the great grazing ranges of the West and use them for improving the cattle there which are under-bred, or fed artificial food. This market is not open to any suspicion of fancy. It is a genuine demand for a genuine beef article, and the Hereford having proved himself the best animal for his situation he has been accorded the premier rank as the best beef animal. We will repeat if calves when kept from 15 to 18 months will bring $400 each, what can be paid for the cow that produces such calves? The only inference that can be drawn is that Hereford cows are at present cheap, and selling for less money than they are worth. Breeder's Journal.

Foot-Rot in Cows. Several of my cows are badly affected with the foot rot, and it is spreading in the herd. Therefore we have sometimes been troubled with it, a while in the early part of the season, but we have had little occasion to treat it, and then only for as long as to clean the foot and pour in a little lard and tallow. But this has been an unusually unfavorable season, and it has got the start of us and does not yield to our usual treatment. The cows in going to and from pastures cross a tract of clay which, when wet, is very unctuous and penetrates every crack and crevice of the foot, but which when dry, becomes almost as hard as a piece of pottery. This apparently very much aggravates the difficulty. Will you suggest a course of treatment that is simple and reliable? REPLY. The old method of clearing out the sore by drawing a tarred rope back and forth between the claws of foot had the merit of simplicity, though it was harsh and injurious. A more rational and humane treatment is to wash the wound thoroughly with soap-and-water, and trim away with a sharp knife any protruding portions of skin or horn, and apply some healing ointment. The tar and tallow preparation named is good, though the tar alone would probably keep the dirt out better and is quite as healing. If there is pus in the wound, which there is quite apt to be, it should be treated with some kind of a caustic preparation before applying the tar. That most commonly used in this disease is a mixture of sulphuric acid and urine. Sometimes blue or white vitriol is substituted for the acid. Sometimes white lye, made by soaking wood ashes in a small quantity of water, answer as well as a more caustic preparation. The animals must be kept out of the mud while the wounds heal, and if they are allowed much exercise a pledge to some sort should be kept between the claws to prevent an absorption of the parts.—Breeder's Journal.

Polled Milch Cows. There is a constant reaching out for something new as a basis for speculation. Booms are all the rage. There was a Short-horn boom a few years ago; there are Jersey, Hereford, Polled Angus and Galloway booms now, and an effort is being made to start a boom in Red Polls for the dairy. Polled dairy cows are not wholly unknown in the country, though there never has been any large numbers of them, nor anything which could properly be called a distinct breed of them. A few have been imported from time to time and a great many more bred, but with little or no system. The foundation of the present movement is a few small importations of the Norfolk or Suffolk reds. One lot imported this season has gone to Iowa, and another to Vermont. The cattle are well spoken of generally by those acquainted with them, but the prospect for working up an active boom in them does not appear flattering.—Breeder's Journal.

A Vermont editor, in publishing one of Byron's poems, changed the words "Oh God!" to "Oh gosh!" because the former was too profane for his readers. "Serve!" said the young man of his friends, "why, Jack, get a heap of serve, for the man's embarrassed at the first time he went to a barber's to get shaved." "Why, Smith, what a dreadful state of intoxication you were in!" "This a dreadful state of intoxication! Just oughter see me th' other night. This 'soul's a Tertiary to it." The moral side of it—"And so, Miss Fuller, you think Miss Johnson did wrong to go on the stage to lighten?" "Indeed I do. Why, her limbs are as thin as pipe-stems." "Gentlemen," said the Texas man in the restaurant when the waiter dumped a plate of hot soup down his back, "gentlemen, don't laugh." As he had risen to his feet and drawn two revolvers, his wife were respect.
