Mr. Post, while in the railway service and during his mayorship, improved his evening hours by reading haw, and so naturally apt was he in mastering the intricacies of Blackstone, that in a few years he was admitted to the bar. The politicians of Northern Pennsylvania began to see that Mr. Post had won a standing on the tidal wave of public popularity that would elect him to Congress as a Democrat in the XV. District, which in the previous Congressional election had given a Republican majority of 4621. Consequently he was placed in nomination last fall by the Democrats, and elected by a plurality of 2454 votes over Hon. C. C. Jadwin, Ind. Rep., whose term expired with the 47th Congress. This great victory, by a young main of only 29 years of age over a gentleman who had served acceptably in Congress and who in age is many years his senior, is the greatest enconium that an appreciative constituency could bestow on the character and ability of Mr. Post. Waiter, call a cab for this lady."

Mr. Post is prominent in other than political honors. He is a leading member of the Knights of Honor, having been Grand Director of the Grand Lodge of Pafor three years, and the representative from his State to the Supreme Ledge of the United States for four years, and in 1880 was one of the Presidential electors from Pennsylvania. He is one of the owners and editors of the Montrose Democrat, the organ of the Democracy in his district, and has been an active campaign orator almost from his boyhood up. Mr. Post is married, and has already become one of the most popular members of Congress now in Washington. He is very unassuming, and impresses the student of human nature as one of the "coming men."
