stroy by ordinary insecticides, and is used or various other insect pests. For trees use syringe or force pump, and for house plants, often injured by scale insects apply with a sponge or swab.-American Agricul-Where do Sponges Come from ! There are a great number of different kinds of sponges besides those of the shops, and some are to be found in nearly every sea. though they have so little resemblance to what you ordinarilly see that you would ardly suppose them to be related. The finer kinds come from the Levant and Medterranean, while the coarser sorts are fron the West Indies and Florida. The Turks rather them by diving, while the spong fishers of the islands along the coast of ireece use a kind of fork having barbed ines fixed to the end of a long pole. Those allected with the fork are apt to be injured. Besides, the finest kinds are found in water fifty feet or more deep and can only be tirring them thoroughly to form a cream-like mixture. When the two are so com letely united that no oil is visible, dilute he mixture with twelve times its bulk of ring theroughly. This emulaton has been found especially useful in the treatment of he various scale insects, so difficult to d water, adding the water gradually, and stir reached by diving. To prepare the sponges they are cover with sand when the jellythe portion soon decays; after this is removed they are thornughly washed and dried. The finest quality of sponge is very costly. is is sold by weight, and the dealers at Smyrns, the principal market, understand ow to make it hold a great deal of very fine sand. Indeed, when a case is opened and the sponges are beaten, the sand often far atweight the sponges .- Am. Aquiculturist THE CLUB ROOT IN CARBAUR.-Mr. George Henderson, Rye, New York, writes that this disease does not occur when cabbage plants are sel out on ground where onjons have grown the year before. An emulsion if kerosene with common soap and water he also finds a sure protection from the cabbage worm. This was also Professor Biley's statement before the American Pomological Society, who also exhibited a nucline for discharging the spray .- Garlener's Monthly.
