FARMERS' COLUMN 0

> Buy a Grape Vine If there is one thing that we have the inug years endeavored to secure, it is that the family of every farmer shalt have an shundanes of fruit. Not fruit now and then, as a lugury, but truit as a matter o course. Eaough for old and young, as much as the children wish at each of the three meals, and a plenty between meals, with me to give to the less provident neighbors.

To begin with, send to a nursery for Concord vine. Twenty five cents should naure a good vine, well packed and pest paid by mail. Our plan does not preclude nore than one, but we wish to make sur of one. Of course many grape fanciers will ridicate our choice of the Concord. We want grapes, and planty of them, and who ever has a Concord vine will be quite sure of these. Concord grapes are vasily better than no grapes. While we cultivate fifty or more better kinds we still believe that the Concord is the best grape for the begin ner. When the vine somes to hand it is to be planted. It is well to have it near the house, and if there is a suitable place for it by the veranda or "stoop," set it there Good, fair, garden soil will answer, and no manure is to be used in planting. The vine will, of course, have a stem and roots. 11 thauten has more than three buds out i away at about an inch from the third bud, ounting from the lower one. If the roots are over two lost long, cut them back to that length; if leas than two fact, cut off two or three inches of the end, at any rate. To plant the vine make a circular hole, of afficient diameter to contain the roots when extended with the vine in the center The bottom of the hals should be conves or rounding, say five of six inches below the surface at the center, and eight or ter at the edges. Set a stake id the center of the hole, place the stem of the vine agains , and spread out the roots in all directions owards the outer edge 11 the roots are natted and tangled, carefully separat hem; when the roots are properly spread, throwing a little soil on them, if needed, t old them in place, cover the roots with the best of the soil, taking care to have i well filled in, leaving an empty space among the roots. When the hole is nearly uil, press shown the soil firmly with the fonts do not tramp or starop it, but press is quarely. There will be nothing more t to to the vine until growth begins. When he three buds left upon the stem begin t start, rub off all but one, leaving the lowest one, if that is as strong as the others, and i dher shouts start during the means remove them. The should from the vine is ver mier at first, and care must be taken that is not broken; when it is a foot or so long muy be find to the stake, using a strip loth, or base matting, and it should h kept tied up as it grows. Try one vinplant it properly, and watch its entir growth; it will teach how to grow man

rines .- Am. Agriculturist. OFFICE in Seiler's Building----The Agricultural Implement Depot, &c. Suggestions on Ornamental Planting-In planning for ornamental trees, shru nd plants, it is well to study the utmoapability of single kinds for serving a vis Spring Styles for 1884 have Arrived! ety of purposes at the same time. Thus, a articular variety may beautify the grounds generally while serving for shade or for helter form sweeping winds. It may, at the same time, be an individual of a tasts 'ul group, or be used as a bankground for her smaller ernwing kinds, or even reen some diagreeable object. Furtner ill, in placing it, we may have a regard or striking contrasts with other surroundng trees and shrubs of different appear nces, or else for toning up or balancing the general effect of the aboreal and other embellishment of a place. In addition to all the above the free will undoubtedly have ums distinctive qualities of its own, in flowers, truit or foilage, rendering it special ly attractive at certain seasons, and it should be used in away to best draw them out. These remarks anyly equally well to all trees shrubs and plants used in the adornment of the grounds. Their selection and atrangenent, to secure all the results possible, i one of the nicest matters pertaining to ornamental gardening. Those who take the most marns to study the salestion and fudiel ous arrangement of material; will be lar more likely to secure gratifying results than the hapmenard planter. It is time to begin studying up what is to be done the precent spring, to consult catalogues and ooks ou ernamental gardenning. Aside rom its practical application, the study of rees and plunts is a delightful occupation tor all the members of the family, as is the planning of the grounds. The use of in truments in micking plans on paper o inen will develop skill in drawing. Evet children encouraged to take part in suc scupation will often advance some ence entideos. If the entire family take par a the planning and selection they will b endy to help along in the actual work Quite young children utag easily be led to Am. Agriculturist. Pruning Evergreens. It is not very long ago that people supiosed that to cut an evergreen was to sure ly kill it. Later experience has shown that these trees, when necessary to bring them into shape, may be pruned like any others. The pruning of evergreens hus constimer been greatly abound by cutting off the lower limbs and predenting a monetrouity which some one has compared to "r Port Chester, N. Y. hay evek upon a stump." The natural form, when an evergreen has room to develop, is that of a cone, with its lowe branches resting upon the ground and forming a tenutiful pyrainid of green. In stead of cutting away the lower branches the better way would be to apply the awe to the trunk, and be done with it altogether Evergreens so generally take a perfectly conteal shaps that pruning is only needed to preserve that form; when a branch grows with unusual vigor and threatens to de stroy the symmetrical shape, it should be cut tiscle. To avoid all appearance of muli lation, make the cut upon the under side o The shape of evergreens may be controlled with very little cutting by proper pinchin
