like oil of sassefras, turpentine, kerosene etc., on the chickens to kill the lice, avoid doing so unless desiring to kill the chickens as well. Sprinkling sulphur freely about Elmira, N. Y., Box 1427. their coops, and on their bodies, is a milder and unite as effective remedy. The best possible plan is not to allow lice to get a start, by keeping the premises thoroughly clean, and the buildings well white wash ed. I have read that at the time paraley is abundant in the garden, it should be given to the towls as a green food. It s not well, however, for it is likely to cause looseness of the bowels, and dropping of soft-shelled eggs under roosts. Allow the towls access to tender grass a few minutes each day, and give the pareley to the pig-Another suggestion is, to scatter air-sluked lime freely about the houses as an absorbent, and a deodorizer. But the continua motion of the fowls keeps the air filled with the choking lime dust, and soon causes injurious rritation in the air passages Plaster, or a shovelful of dry soil thrown on the roost board, is better than lime. When fowls have a cold, it is better to us a little care in feeding for a few days, than to dose heavily with pills, red papper, etc., etc., as some recommend. A cold or roup shows itself in different ways, by coughing or sneezing, and by swelled faces, watery eyes and nostrils, and the worst form is canker in the mouth. A simply cold can he easily managed and cared in a few days, by giving small quantities of sulphur in heir worm dough, with a light sprinkling f red pepper occasionally, and warm water to drink. Castor oil, applied by pouring i down the throat from a small-necked bo tie, is particularly good. In cases of canker which is the worst form of cold or roup more care is necessary. The diseased towl just be immediately removed from the rell ones, and pure water provided for them in clean disher, in which a small nece of coppersu may be dropped occasion ally. Feed no hard grain, and mix the dough with hot milk, feeding it sparingly -Hasay C. Brown, in Am. Agriculturist.

Milking Tubes. An unusual number of inquiries about ulking tubes have been received recently several years ago they were brought before the public, by a man who had some noteriet as a practical farmer and stock breede wit in great flourish as convenient, practicot and useful in any herd, and not injurious. No doubt at first he may have been bones: about it, but he really tested only one or two of his own cows, and the only one we saw thus used had her udder ruined Still the boom went on in spite of the warnings of this journal, and other editors who took care to let their readers know what the matter was as soon as they learn el it themselves. A dozen different forms w-re made, and some were patented, but all were worthless except in the hands of a skillful surgeon, and then in case of obstruc-

At times the insertion of a tube into th ent of the cow will empty the quarter apidly of the milk, without harm to the ow. But there is one danger always present; on withdrawing the tube a bubble of air is very likely to escape from it into the udder, and there being no provision for absorbing of air thus introduced, it acts like any other foreign substance, and produces inflammation-garget, often aust interne All the efforts to prevent the escape of the ir bubbles by bending the tubes, by attact ing rubber tubes, and various other conrivances were in vain. Hundreds of cowe had the garget and lost one or more quar ters. Our advice given then and repeated now is, let milking tubes alone. They are no longer on sale that we know of, and aght not to be. It is important for s stysician or surgeon to be able to draw off ilk without pressure upon the teat of udder, but other people better be content to follow the old way in milking.-CoL WELD in Am. Agriculturist.

A Word on Cooking.

Taxe one or two common dishes as cook d by ordinary servants, and compare them with what they should be; for instance that such abused dish, "hash." No wonder, as it is brought to the table too often. The oids and ends of meat, left over from many neals, are picked up; some are fresh and me dry, some with tough gristle on, and all chopped together with potatoes (the last perhaps just cooked and hot, which speil all hashes). It is put into a cold spider, with fat of some kind, and moistened wit water, sometimes too much and sometime too little. When bot it is sent to the table. The real, appetizing hash is something verdifferent and a nice breakfast dish. Water in which meat of any kind has been boiled hould be set away to cool, the fat remove and the broth saved for soups, stews and hashes. All gravies should be saved and treated in the same way, and no fat at all left in them. A jar of "Extract of Beef" terspoonful of the extract in a half cup of hot water will moisten and flavor the hush and add very much to its richness. More hould be used if the quantity of hash needed is large. Corned beef is always best, but the hash is good when made of cold roas beef, mutton, or towls. A roast beef bone will often have on it meat enough for hash when there is not enough for the table in any other form. It should be boiled in Port Chester, N. Y. very little water (and the water sayed to misten it) until the mest loosens from the bones; then chopped twice the amount of cold boiled notatoes, seasoned with salt and fire. The spider with a little butter of beef dripping in it, should be boiling bot the hash put on and covered until a light brown crust has formed; then turned over on the platter and served .- ETHEL STONE, in Am. Agriculturist.
