But in dorng this needed world be sure to clean up the brush. The larges branches will furnish excellent wood when dry. The small brush is best burned in a single heap, so the askes may be collected for garden uses.

-Field beans and peas may be put in any time now. Many prefer drilling in rows 50 and 40 inches spart. If in hills the practice is generally to have them far anough spart to admit running the horse cultivator at least one way; better perham both ways. Of late years beans have been a paying crop all over the world.

-The principal part of the encumbe planting (for pickles) should be deferred a little later, but it is time those for early able use were in. An excellent way is to place a headless barrel in the garden plat plant a hill on each side about 20 inches rom it. Fill the barrel with coarse ma nure and give it a pariful or two of water uch evening. This souks through and keeps the mote of the cucumber plants noist and well fed. In a dry season use

Care of Farm Horses.

This is a very trying senson of the year r farmers' teams. The work is driving, is all beavy, with no off days, except Sanday, and all of them do not enjoy that season o rest. The wise farmer knows that during spring's work and plowing time his teams will run down rapidly unless they have extra feed and care, and the latter is quite as important as the former. it costs more restore run down animals, than to keep em in good condition, while a team well ted and cared for will do more and better The wear of work new comes most heav

ly on the muscles, and the feed should no only be sufficient, but rich in bitrogenous or muscle producing elements. Caro is very enerally used as the concentrated teed for erson to the West. This is a mistake uce core is largely a fat and heat-produc ing food. Onte, peas, and barley mixed with some corn should constitute the grain ed for farm or carriage horses, especially warm weather. Every one familiar with the tough, spirited "French horzes" of Canada, knows their grain feed is cheifly outs and peas. Hence they are strong and nduring, and are generally preferred a all others by city street railway companie Mr. Stuart says a good nummer ration for work horses is 16 pounds of oats and cor n equal quantities, ground together, with 12 pounds of cut hay. Some English an ther Ecropean authorities make a ratio of 10 to 12 quarts of eats, 6 to 8 pounds e bay, with straw and steamed chaff. The haff can be fed in cities or on farms having deaming appliances, while good clear straw, finely cut, can be fed on any farm though not to work horses. The writer's sed for farm horses would be plenty of dry ats, unground, it the animal's teeth are in ood condition and he did not bolt his food, with a moderate feeding of good timothy r muistened cut cloyer. We have seen arm teatns fed for years wholly on early gathered and carefully cured clover fed dry. though they ran in the pasture during the

The care of the team is as important as its feed. When the farmer comes in from his day's work all perspiration and dirt, he feels greatly refreshed by "washing up." He needs his supper all the same, but the washing refreshes him, opens the pores and contributes to his bodily health. A horse is benefited by like treatment. A wise and humane driver will always give tenns a areful growing at the close of a day's rork; they will not only enjoy it, but will eat better be less inclined to rub themselves in the stable, and He down more unjetly a night, rest better, and be stronger for the ext day's tell The "ecratches" are often the result of rorking in the dirt and damp. As a rule his can be prevented by washing and rubing the exposed parts dry. We never yet ailed of curing semiches on a well-fed and roperly cared for horse, with warm water and a dry cloth. By a little daily care, ashing in cold water guiled aboutders or ack can be cared or prevented. We have me the work of a 100 acre farm with one nir of horses that were always in good udition, free from scratches or any other I muse, but they had plenty of good feed and the best care, and were stabled twelve contag in the year.
