The Shenandoah (Pa.) Sunday News made its appearance on our table Monday morning last for the first time since the "great fire" news and bright as ever. We congratulate friend Boyle on its resurrection.

The attention of our readers is directed to the report of Prof. T. M. Ballist, ex-Co. Supt., relative to the condition of the public schools, which will be found printed on the first page of this week's Carbon Advocate. The facts and suggestions therein contained are of especial moment to school directors and others interested in educational matters.

The enterprising proprietors of Hood's Saraparilla are the first in the field with a Campaign Card giving an excellent lithographic portrait and sketch of Jas. O. Blaine, the Republican Presidential candidate. The lack of the card also gives the last election vote, the new apparatus, and other valuable information. Copies may be had by sending stamp to G. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.

The June roses have come and wilted and Congress is yet in session. Not until a few of the culpable members melt down into their boots, will these fellows get ready to go home. The excuse for failing to accomplish anything in the way of business in a short session, might as well be duplicated for a long session, as little beside President-making is ever done. The weeks that have been thrown away upon the Tariff bill, the Fitz-John Porter case and other measures that had no earthly significance or public interest, are really and absolutely a criminal waste of the public money. All over the country the Federal courts have been compelled to suspend business for want of the necessary appropriations out of which to pay the fees of jurors, witnesses, &c., while the best part of the year for work in the improvement of the rivers and harbors of the country will have passed long before the new appropriations for that purpose can be made available.

To that portion of the grand old party who have been accustomed to a crowd diet, the nomination of Blaine and Logan affords a delightful repast of the favorite dish. Even the Massachusetts fellows who are sneering by the dock headed upon that they cannot go Blaine, are beginning to anticipate the possibility of Ben Butler as the Bourbon candidate, and ask themselves where they can go, if they cannot eat Crow? Yes, they will all eventually swallow Blaine with the Mulligan letters and Little Rock bonds as relishes, because they know that the man who can overcome such odds as Blaine did at Chicago, with simply a whoop with no barrel, can accomplish mighty things with a whoop that has a barrel accompaniment. The high-toned and top self philosophers like George William Curtis and his brother man-milliners Schurz, Roosevelt and company, will either wheel into line or profit by the example of Trumbull, Doan, Little, Palmer and the rest of them, who in the turbulent sea of Republican politics have never been permitted to get their noses above water.

FROM WASHINGTON

SPECIAL TO THE CARBON ADVOCATE. WASHINGTON, JUNE 20, 1884. "I declare there about half a wagon load of dust and old paper," said one of the attendants of the House the other evening, as he threw himself back in one of the chairs and contemplated the rows of empty seats. "Some of the members are awfully disorderly. Underneath their desks is piled up in disorderly heaps masses of bills, books, records, old papers and what not. Some of the desks are fearful to contemplate. But inside it's worse. Lift up the lids and it is as if a pile of promiscuous papers had been dumped in for the rats to make nests of. And then the floor! It is covered with scraps of paper, old bills and cigar stumps."

"Some of the members, however," he added, his eyes resting on two front seats on the Republican side. "Some members are very neat and fastidious. For instance, Mr. Keam, of New Jersey, and Mr. William Walter Phelps, they are two of the neatest men in the House. They occupy those two seats, and you never see a scrap of paper or any litter anywhere about them. Keason is very neat too, and so is Morrison. Randall never leaves any papers in his desk at all. He leaves it clear of everything, doing all his writing and the like in his committee room. About the only other men who are remarkably orderly about their desks are Harner, Hines, Chase, Spooner, Rockwell, Jones and Miller, of Texas. Outside, when he occupied a desk, always kept it in order. Lyman, who is a very neat man in his appearance, leaves his papers all arranged on his desk, and in the morning he reads the papers and writes with a driving pen. It was, however, we were informed, only a specimen of Clyde weather; as the warm winds from the Atlantic meeting the cooler breezes from the highlands produce rain on the slightest provocation.

Glasgow is the commercial metropolis of Scotland and the third city in Great Britain in population. Its manufacturing interests are very large and Clyde built ships are known the world over. To one, however, who has had the pleasure of a sail up the narrow and shallow Clyde it is a wonderful how this commercial supremacy has been attained. For miles on both sides of the river ship yards are seen and the clang of the hammer is heard on every hand. The present season is very dull for business throughout the United Kingdom and complaints of over production are frequently heard and the shipping interests of Glasgow are at a comparatively low ebb. The principal attraction in the city for a tourist is the Cathedral, which was built in the twelfth century and is in a good state of preservation. Its crypts are the finest in the kingdom and its forty four stained glass windows are among the most precious of that branch of modern art; the nonconformists of the Reformation having destroyed the original windows and the being only about fifteen years old. The necropolis, an ornamental cemetery which adjoins the Cathedral, is a fine monument to John Knox, whose body however is buried at Edinburgh.

In Foreign Lands.

From our own Correspondent. GLASGOW, Scotland, June 12, 1884. "There's many a worse people than the Scotch," remarked an old man in an Edinburgh, as a sort of apology for having asked if we were not from Scotland; and after our visit there we are strongly inclined to his opinion. Like his neighbor across the North channel, the Scotchman loves his drink and evidently gets an abundance of it; but as a people they are industrious, intelligent, faithful to friends and principles, and endowed with a strong love of liberty and country, which we cannot but admire.
