What Flavored the Beer.

A small quantity of gentlemen, two of whom was physician, says the Hazleton Plain Speaker, of the 25th ult., called for lager beer in a saloon yesterday. There were no other customers in the place when they entered. It so happened that one of the doctors got the glass first drawn; he only drank half of it. The others followed their class and regarded the doctor, who alternately tasted and scrutinized the contents of his glass. He handed it to his leather physician to taste.

"Coronibus inder?"

"I give it up," replied the other, taking the glass again. "I am inclined to think it is a variety of beer."

"No, no, no," said one of the non-professional members of the party. He smoked his pipe.

"Venturus, I'll bet."

Another gentleman tasted, and said: "Brass liquor, what's your remark?"

"No, no, no," said the other, "I've never served member of the party. "This was the first glass drawn through the pipe. It has a brass cock and the beer has been standing in the pipe for some time before we came. That's why it tastes like brass filings."

As they left the place the quiet man of the party remarked in a melancholy tone: "That is what I have mistaken for liver complaint all this while. Brass filings, acetate of copper and cocculus—what did you say it was doctor?"

SCROFULA SUITINGS!

A remedy that can destroy the germs of scrofula, and when once settled has the power to root it out, must be appreciated by those afflicted. The remarkable cures of young children and the more wonderful cures of those of middle age and late in life, as illustrated by our printed testimonials, prove Hood's Sarsaparilla to be a reliable remedy, containing remedial agents which do not do any harm, and do not irritate the blood.

WARREN, N. H., Jan. 21, 1879.
Gentlemen: I have been a constant sufferer from Scrofula for many years, and have finally reduced me to a helpless condition, as described in my letter to you in respect to my condition. I have tried every remedy, but health which enables me to keep house and to do my duty, which I have done since I have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla. I cannot refrain from expressing my gratitude for the recovery I have obtained from this wonderful medicine.
