Seasonable Farm Hants.

BY L. D RNOOK. Do not Pasture too Closely. In many farming section August an prember are the driest months in the whole pusturing season, and nuless a farmer has an abundance of pasturage, or has taken the precaution to som corn or other grain for soming at this critical period, he may find himself short of an adequate sop ply of nutritions food for the stock moully kept upon the farm. This will result in marked decrease in the supply of milk. Horses, cattle and even sheep, instead o seeking the shade at maiday, are compelled by the short berbage to feed all day long to obtain a cofficient suply to maintain their existence and usual flesh, and even then a decrease in weight and appearance is quite noticeable. The grass is eaten off down to the very roots, exposing them to the heat of a searching sun. In the drier places the grass withers and dries up, looking brown and dead, and thus remains until the gu tumn rains set in. Except in an extremely dry and unfavorable season this short pas trage is traveable to keeping more stock bun the pasture will support in good, condition. This is most certainly a poor policy. and those who at this time find themselves overstocked would do a sensible thing to reduce the amount of live stock to corr spond with the amount of food available. Butchers will gladly pay a good price for stock suitable for their market, and it will pay to dispose of the superfluous stock now .

and thus prepare to go into winter quarters with the remainder in better condition, a n ant too often averlooked by many. Even at this late season of the year pastures may se made to yield an incressed quantity of food by applying to the lowest portion, or hat containing the most moisture, (I refer ocultivated fields) a costing of well rotted stable manure, or a supply of some quick acting commercial fertilize, or bone meal The first good shower after this application will cause in two weeks' time a heavy grawth to spring firsh in sufficient aband nce to bridge over this critical partial. Every year thousands of pasture fields or rained for this purpose by too close facting off at a dry season. There is also another gross mistake a multitude of farmers an Canada and Europe, at reduced rates. With nually make. In some cases, I admit, it is our principal office located in Washington, a matter of necessity; but generally speak Office, we are able to attend to all patent cently seeded clover and tomothy field ws and pasture fields, and particularly or aftermath, for the better protection

During the season of harvest just ender every farmer, in gathering his crops, both of grain and buy, has often from I no doubt portions of the field on which the crop wa much power, thioner and shorter than the SWOTH Subscription List 70,000. main portion. If this part be located in t lawland, then nine times in ter undraining will remedy the difficulty; to when a knoll or elevated portion of the field is found to be deficient in plant field then the only certain remedy is the appl eation of manure as required, and the b ime to apply it is soon, after the rem of the crop. When the difficulty exists in a meadow, apply barayard manure a naiderable sumply of which usually annulates during the annumer. It fi a ply evenly, barrowing thoroughly, matter if it does tear up a portion of t grass plants; after which matter over tom by or other hardy grass seed. It the mac tre is course, burrow first, now the good then apply the manure. Fine, well-rotte anure should atways be used if possible and you will be agreeably surprised to not what a fine heavy growth the grass he ands before winter sets in.

The same plan should be followed in the estment of pasture lands, while stubbl and should have the manure worked with a cultivator, scattering a little wint wheat or rye over the cultivated partio This will not only prevent the soil from vashing,but will form a fine coat of vegeta de matter to be ploughed under in the

This plan of tall manuring is recom-needed only for "patching up" portions of therwise fertile fields. I am not an acrootherwise fertile fields. I am not an accorded autumn manuring, except in the case suggested, and for siding the growth of winter crops like wheat and type. Yet many successful farmers practice autumo manuring, and compact the manure during sommer for this late application; and cortainly many most marked and beneficial results have been obtained from following this plan.

THE WORLD OF AGRICULTURE.

The Agricultural Borld, one of the best of not the best, farm papers of its class, is making a great success of the plan inaugurated by its editor, a few years ago. This plan is nothing less than the giving of extonaire articles by the best writers on agriculture in all the countries of the world. The articles from the different States and Territories of our own country are particularly instructive and entertaining. Judge Parish's articles on "The Parmer's Belation to Law" are alone worth the price of the paper. Judge Parish, who is one of the ablest judges and lecturers in the West, will soon leave for the South, with the view of supplying the paper with a series of atticles on the agricultural features of that section.
