FARMERS' COLUMN

A Talk About Swins Feeding.

The first thing a farmer should conside

, to have healthy hoge, and in order to curs this he must provide a variety of loud, and give them comfortable quarters My pigs were led, last winter, corn, roots wheat middlings and buckwheat bran-This winter they are fed the same, with the addition of raw applea of which I purchased eight hundred bushel, mostly for the pigs. Warm sheds or rather pens, are constructed in a supur corner of the fields adjoining the buildings, and here the pigs are being wintered, in lots of a degen or less in each They have plenty of room in which to stishoul; and are led in a spot where the cold winds do not reach them. One fruitful cause of discuss with page is, exposure to a cold wind when just out of a hot nest where, perhaps, they have been piled upon each other. The sudden change of temperature may be as great as twenty or thirty degrees -The serenc, silent beauty of a haly life may assume the form of plearisy, quincy enough, any way, to cause colds, which is the most powerful influence in the inflammation of the lungs or howels Sleeping under the straw stack and feeding - Each departed friend is a magnet that on the open ground in a raking wind, lay the foundation for many diseases. Profitable Freding of Cows.

Where milk is sold at high prices near ties, it may pay a dairyman to over cell his cows with brewer's grains and articles d the kind, to stimulate milk production, without regard to their bealth; but for the general farmer, it is important not only to have a good cow, but to keen her in health for a number of years. At present prices of dairy products, I do not see what profit the adinary farmer can make without, by like management, he can tura every function of his cow to account. First, of unting that the excess milk or butter production of individualmay be so profitable, that the other element above named may be dismissed as a relatively little importance, I feel called or to lay down as a proposition, the truth of which extensive observation and the experience of many years devoted to the the Lowest Prices and " Perfect Fits," breeding of animals of various kinds, has convinced me.
