ONE PLACE APART.

JAMES BRENT BENERL.

Arrows it eyes, and like gentians blue,

A baby classed its hands and alepta

The red lips took a paler hue.

Of blossoms at its feet and head,

They hid it from the mother's sight-

The mother with the empty arms-

And all the field flowers lost their charms.

And night came on with stars and dew

Of maistened flower cuts and the few

Dar's mosses by the unused well.

The asters nodded on the hill.

But all the world was narrowed down

To her-to whom it was so wide-

New-rounded on the meadow-side.

And then she saw one star that grew

Its glorious radiance shimmered through

That led to where the Christ child lay!

From Hon who took my child away.

And pray for peace and righteous grace

And earth regained its wonted charms;

The mother heart shed warmth and light On other children in her arms.

And none but God could enter there,

Where her child was shrined in prayer.
