Amputation of the Leg.

Money is the universal negessity, and nane but a cymic or a tool will affect to despise it. Mr. Abrain bileworth, of Port Ewen, Ulster County, N. Y., had realized this trath. His discan involved the whole of his thigh-bone, smit the suffaring man looked, not without appearent reason, to death as his only dolly-erer. The family physician relused to amputate the limb, asserting that the operation would kill the patient on the spot. Dr. DAVID KENNEDY, of Rendout, N. Y., who was consulted, held a different opinion and amputated the limb. The doctor then administered freely, his great Blood Specific PAVORITE REMEDY to afford tone and strength to the system and prevent the return of the disease, and Mr. Plaworth remains to day in the bloom of health. This gentleman's disease was the offspring of foul blood, and Kennedy's FAVORITE REM-EDY parified the blood and restored to him the power to once more enjoy his life. Grafting the Grapavine. perous inquiries have been made this spring as to the method of grafting the grapevine, but too late for a reply to be given in time to be useful this season. Some of the writers propose to take wild grapevines, and use them as stocks upon which to graft desirable varieties. This would be very poor economy. An old vine of any kind is rarely worth removing, and least of all, a wild one. Such vines are peorly furnished with roots, and would make very poor stocks. It some already has an uld vine of a poor variety, and wishes to graft it with a more desirable kind, he can do so by digging down and inserting the cious. be given in time to be meful this sea digging down and inserting the clous-below the surface of the ground. The proper season for this operation is in the proper season for this operation is in the fall, when vegetation is at rest. If the old root is in a healthy condition, a very vigorous growth will follow. Another method of grafting is to insert the cion in a strong cane, or branch of the vine, selecting one that may be bent down, and have the union of stock and cion, with a joint or two of the cane, covered with soil. The method known as whipgrafting is employed, the cion and stock grafting is employed, the cion and stock being held together by a tie, firstead of wax. The grafted cane is then laid in a shallow trench, in such a manner that a hud or two of the cion will be above ground. This, it will be seen, is a com-bination of layering and grafting. The cion is nourished at first by the old vine. but in the course of the senson, the buried portion of the cane will produce abundant roots, and in the fall may be separated from the parent plant. This separated from the parent plant. This operation should be performed early in spring, before there is danger of copious "bleeding," which might prevent the union. It may also be done upon the new growth, after the shoots of the season have become sufficiently matured, in this case using ciors of similar new growth. This method with new wood we have not tried, but it is said to be we have not fried, but it is said to be successful. Nearly all of our hardy grapes are grown so readily from entings, and come into bearing so soon, that this is the usual and least troublesome manner of propagating them.—

A New Orleans paper refers editorially to the wonderful restoration to health of Mr. T. Poscy, druggist, 225 Canal street, of plant food. After much suffering his wife applied St. Jacobs Oil, which cured him promptly and entirely.

Specimen Orchards. Of all classes of business men, fruit-growers should be the slowest to take things from hearsay. Nothing but de-monstrable facts should satisfy them. Their business is dealing with "futures," too far remote to be trifled with. They plant trees to bear fruit, not next autumn, like a field of corn, but five or twenty years from now. Hence they twenty years from now. Hence they must be very sure that the tree they plant this spring is not only of the best age and shape, but of the variety best adapted to their purpose. How are they to know this? Only in-one way—by actual cynerical, a grower sees a actual experiment. A grower sees a beautiful specimen of fruit, and finds it highly recommended. The fruit pleases highly recommended. The fruit pleases him; as a specimen it seems perfect; in unfortunately it was grown many miles way, or in another State, and how is he to know it will succeed on his farm? The soil may be different, perhaps the climate is also. His only sure way will be, to buy five or ten trees; plant them in a specimen orchard and see. In due tinde will know whether to plant, that writely by the hundred, or dig up the rees he has. If every one of his neighbors also had a few trees on trial, their united testimony would be conclusive for that locality. This should apply to small fruits as well. The "Big Bob" may be the biggest of strawberries, but how can we know it is the best for us, if not by actual trial? Let each grower set apart a plot of ground for a specimen set apart a plot of ground for a specimen-orchard, and each year add several new varieties. Give an avarage amount of eare and cultivation, and carefully note the growth, habit and peculiarities of the trees, and finally the fruit of each. the trees, and finally the fruit of each, The writer has such an orchard of trees, gathered from four States. It comprises new varieties and "promising seedlings." The trees are not yet large enough to bear, but if the future profits equal the present pleasure of comparing the different trees, the venture will be a very satisfactory one, and to say nothing of the information gained.—Am. Apriculturiat.
