

A HOME DRUGGIST TESTIFIES.

Popularity at home is not always the best test of merit, but we point proudly to the fact that no other medicine has won for itself such universal approval in its own city, state, and country, and among all people, as Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

The following letter from one of our best-known Massachusetts Druggists should be of interest to every sufferer:—

RHEUMATISM. Eight years ago I had an attack of Rheumatism, which was so severe that I could not move from the bed, or dress without help. I tried several remedies without much if any relief, until I took Ayer's Sarsaparilla, by the use of two bottles of which I was completely cured. I have since had large quantities of your Sarsaparilla, and it still retains its wonderful popularity. This may not be a case of Rheumatism, but it is the best blood medicine ever offered to the public.

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass. Sold by all Druggists; $1.50 bottles for six.

MANHOOD

How Lost, How Restored!

Just published, a new edition of Dr. C. C. WELLS' Celebrated Essay, on the radical cure of Strabismus or Squint, Weakness, Involuntary Seminal Emission, Impotency, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc.; also, Gonorrhoea, Erysipelas and Pits, induced by self-indulgence, or sexual extravagance.

The celebrated author, in this admirable essay, clearly demonstrates from a strictly scientific and practical basis, the true nature and consequences of self-abuse, and how to be cured; pointing out a mode of cure as simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land. Sent under seal, in a plain envelope, in any address, post paid, on receipt of five cents or two postage stamps.

FARMERS' COLUMN.

Horse Stables.

The condition and health of a horse depends very much upon the kind of stable it is kept in. There are horses which suffer from diseases of the eyes, from coughs, from scratches and other skin diseases, all of which are produced by the pungent fowl air in the stables.

Farmers and others who have horses, will take pains to keep their carriage and harness protected from the strong ammoniacal air of the stables lest the leather may be rotted or the varnish dulled and spotted, and at the same time they will wonder why their horses cough or have weak eyes or moon blindness, or suffer from other diseases, which, if they would only think for a few minutes, they would readily perceive are due to the foul air the animals are compelled to breathe every night in the year while confined in close, badly ventilated stables. The remedy is very easy. The stable should be kept clean; this will prevent the greater part of the mischief; and it should be well ventilated. The floor should be properly drained, so that the liquid will not remain on it, to be absorbed, and decompose, and produce the pungent vapors of ammonia, which are so injurious to the eyes, nostrils, throat, and lungs, and this liquid waste should be carried away to some place where it can be absorbed and utilized. The floor should be washed off at least twice a week with a plenty of water and then liberally sprinkled with finely-ground gypsum (plaster) which will combine with the ammonia, and fix it. A solution of copperas (sulphate of iron) will have the same result. Lastly, the floor should be supplied with absorbent litter, which should be removed when it is soiled. Ventilation should be provided in such a way as to avoid cold drafts. Small openings, which may be easily closed with a slide, may be made in the outer wall near the floor, and similar ones near the ceiling, or in the roof, through which the foul air can escape. Pure air is of the utmost importance to the well-being of horses. As an instance of it may be mentioned the fact that in the English cavalry stables a complete system of ventilation reduced the average loss of horses from the deadly disease, glanders, from one hundred and thirty-two per thousand yearly, to nine in the thousand; and when a similar improvement was made in the French army stables the percentage of death was reduced in a similar ratio, with a still larger decrease of milder ailments. —Am. Agriculturist.

Worse Than Opium.

The editor of an Omaha paper, in commenting on several cases in that city where children died from the effects of taking cough syrup containing morphia, remarks that opium, poisons and narcotics are more dangerous than firearms. Mothers should note this, and furthermore that different Boards of Health, after making careful analyses have certified that the only pure vegetable preparation of this kind, and one that is in every way harmless, prompt and effective, is Red Star Cough Cure. Mayor Lamborn, of Baltimore, and the Commissioner of Health, have publicly endorsed this valuable discovery.

Breeds and Families.

In the breeding of live stock, everybody realizes the subdivision of races into breeds. Among cattle we have Short-horns, Devons, Ayrshires, Jerseys, Dutch, etc., and it is impossible to establish definite limits to their multiplication. Among dogs we have pointers, setters, mastiffs, etc., in great numbers, and so among all the races of quadrupeds, birds, and even fishes, which come from under the influence of intelligent breeders, breeds are multiplied. These breeds occasionally break up into sub-breeds, as setter dogs into English, Irish, Gordon, etc., and when carefully bred, they always break up into families. These are essentially short-lived from the nature of things. A family may possess strong peculiarities, great propensity, and the individuals may prey to each other strong resemblances, but in the course of years, continued close breeding within the family, weaken the constitution, or lessen the profit to the keeper in one way or another, so that he is actually forced to take outside crosses, to maintain the character of the family. As an example, the famous family of the Duchesse Short-horn, was first maintained intact by the Oxford cross, which finally became so blended with the Duchesse, that other crosses were forced upon it, each one doing its share to dilute the blood and destroy the identity of the family. The highest value of families is for crossing and grading. Among the Jerseys as now bred, we see this strikingly shown. The great producers are all recent crosses of great butler families. These crosses between families serve in this way to intensify characteristics of the breed. The blood of different families does not always unite well to produce the sought-for qualities. When this is so, the families are said to "mick" with each other. Yet they may, and probably will mick well, crossed with others. Thus the blood of the famous English bull "Roter," when it has been crossed with certain other families, has produced great butter-making cows. —M. C. WELLS in Am. Agriculturist.

A Remarkable Escape.

Mrs. Mary A. Dalley, of Tunkhannock, Pa., was afflicted for six years with Asthma and Bronchitis during which time the best physicians could give no relief. Her life was despaired of, until last October she procured a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery, when immediate relief was felt, and by continuing its use for a short time she was completely cured gaining in flesh 50 lbs. in a few months.

HAPPY CHILDREN.

How to Make Them So—Keep Them in Health and They will take care of the Best.

The joy of every well regulated household comes chiefly from the children. Thousands of affectionate parents do not take care of their children. Through ignorance more than culpable neglect they suffer them to fall sick and die, when knowledge might have saved them to love and honor. Dr. David Kennedy offers his "Favorite Remedy" as an emphatically a medicine for the children—gentle in its action, containing no harmful ingredients whatever, going straight to the blood, which when injured, is the seat and source of disease. "Favorite Remedy" is the friend of childhood and should be found in every nursery in the land. Keep it in your house for your children's sake, as well as for your own. Try it and you will be glad you saw it. It is the best medicine for children. The medicine is "Favorite Remedy" and the proprietor's name and address: Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y. One dollar a bottle.

Good words for a good thing.—Dr. David Kennedy's "Favorite Remedy" is exactly what it claims to be, and has done the praises that are showered upon it by all who have used it. Mr. Israel H. Snyder, of Saugerties, N. Y., says: "My little daughter was covered with scabs. Rheum from head to foot; Dr. Kennedy's 'Favorite Remedy' cured her. This was two years ago."

We are not in the habit of puffing any sort of patent medicines in our columns, but we happen to know Dr. David Kennedy, of Rondout, N. Y., and can personally testify to the excellence of the medicine which the doctor calls "Favorite Remedy." And if a word of ours will persuade anybody to try it, and thus find relief from suffering no personal atonement shall hinder us from saying that word. For diseases of the blood, and every kind of skin ailment, we would not be without it for five times the dollar it costs.—Daily Times, Troy, N. Y. June 13th.

MISCELLANEOUS.

—A host in him: the Inn-keeper.

—A ten strike: a blow with both fists.

—A court house: the home of marriageable daughters.

—The speculator who holds eggs for a rise generally gets the worst of the eggs.

—The great success of church choir singing is, after all, largely a matter of chants.

—The revival of the polka dot suggests in some people that the world of fashion is in its dotage.

—Time waits for no man; but if we may believe what some of our maiden friends say of their age, it waits for woman.

"I have no appetite," complain many sufferers. Hood's Sarsaparilla gives an appetite and enables the stomach to perform its duty.

—If, as is stated, the stomach of the ostrich is located at the back between the wings, after a hearty meal we imagine it might look just a little round-shouldered.

—It doesn't follow that the men of the present day are more truthful than their fathers were, because they are more addicted to swearing to what they say.

"No doubt," said a footman to a short, little gentleman who had insulted him, "you think yourself three times as good as I am; for I am only a footman, while you are a three-foot-man."

"—Pa," said Johnnie, at Barnum's circus the other day, "if one of those Arabs should fall down and knock all of his teeth out would he talk gum Arabic?"

Avoid by all means the use of calomel for bilious complaints. Ayer's Cathartic Pills compounded entirely of vegetable ingredients, have been tested for forty years, and are acknowledged to be the best remedy ever devised for torpidity of the liver, constiveness, and all derangements of the digestive apparatus.

—A Hackensack woman set a speckled hen on a dried apple pie, and inside of three weeks the hen hatched fourteen night-mares with blue ribbons on their tails.

—Satin was early described as one who went up and down the earth, seeking whom, or what, he might devour. He was the original dead-beat and free lunch fiend.

—She asked him one day what animal dropped from the clouds, and he answered: "The rain, dear." Then there was only one section in two months. Yum! Yum!

The Burdock Plant is one of the best diuretics or kidney regulators in the vegetable kingdom, and is commonly known as Burdock Blood Bitters, is unsurpassed in all diseases of the kidney, liver and blood.

"—What does this mean?" asked a scholar, who had been scanning some lines written by a friend. "Oh," said the friend, "it doesn't mean anything. It is poetry."

—The Spring chicken was on deck. Old bachelor Crusty remarked that it was as tough as leather. "Shoo leather, I suppose," exclaimed the boarder who never laughs.

—In Bombay, husbands cut off their wives' noses for punishment. The women in this country are too smart for their husbands. They never talk through their noses.

—A Vermont man got wind of the proposed elopement of his wife, and frustrated it by keeping guard over her sick dress. She wouldn't run away in a calico gown, and he knew it.

There is no fighting nature. Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy does nothing of that kind. It does not make the sufferers who trust it worse under the pretense of doing them good. It acts tenderly and in sympathy with what nature herself is trying to accomplish. Do you have trouble with your digestion, liver or your kidneys? Does rheumatism pain and rack you? Is your head thick and heavy? It will charm away these ailments almost before you are aware.

—A scientist has discovered that drinking too much coffee will cause bald heads. If this be so, what passes for coffee in the average boarding house is a blessing in disguise as a hair preserver.

"—You are always behind," pettishly exclaimed a lady to her footman, who made the carriage wait till he took his place. "As coarse OI am, meen; OVI roide on the front sate of OI wassn't, meen!"

—A girl masquerading in boy's clothing slipped and fell. She said, "ouch," and this gave her away. A man would have been just as much hurt, but he would have made a different remark.

"—So the missus is to be married, eh?" said the gardener to the cook. "Yis, and in Hightest style, too. She's got fer to have a dress three yards long, and have four pall-bearers to carry it!"

"—I can't say as he went to heaven," remarked a Fort Scott citizen of a deceased townsman, "but he paid a bill of eleven years standing only the day before he died, and you can judge for yourself."

—A boy in one of the public schools, while engaged in defining words, a few days since, made a mistake that was not a mistake. He said: "A demagogue is a vessel that holds beer, wine, whiskey, gin, or any other kind of intoxicating liquors."

—A girl with three arms is one of the attractions of a Louisiana side show. This young lady ought to be sought for by every marriageable man in the neighborhood. She could put two arms around a man's neck, while she turned pancakes with the other.

In A Tunnel.

THE AWFUL MISTAKE OF A NEW MADE BRIDEGROOM.

A newly married couple were en route to Washington by the Baltimore & Ohio. There are many tunnels on this road the other side of the Ohio river. All through Ohio the face of the young man were occasional looks of pain, despite his great joy. He seemed to want something. Apparently he yearned. Over in West Virginia the train entered a tunnel. Upon emerging into the light the young man's face was seen to wear a staid expression. He was thinking. At first he seemed perplexed, then interested, then triumphant. He had had a revelation. Then he smiled with a firm, manly, continuous smile, and his hands peered ahead for the first sign of a yawning cavern in the mountain side. The bride was happy and demure. Whisk—shadows—rumbles—darkness. The veil is drawn. It is another tunnel. Light again, and the young man looks happier than ever. The bride's cheek displays a gentle blush—a modest, inexperienced blush, discovered only by the initiated and envious. No perplexity, no anxiety now. The revelation has been tested and found a success. There are many tunnels, but not enough. If the whole line were a tunnel the bride and groom would not care how low the train proceeded. The man who has not lived to bless the builder of tunnels does not know what happiness is. He is but little above the brute which never troubled the Creator for passing clouds over the moon on prayer meeting night. But our bridegroom was not one of these parties. He appreciated all the blessings which man and nature had bestowed upon him. He did not miss a tunnel.

But all things must have an end. Daylight always comes to the newly married pair. Strawberries and cream must be paid for at the cashier's desk. Within the blissful cucumber hides for a drink of water. While on his errand his eager eye catches the signs of another tunnel. Of course he fears his bride will be sore afraid if left alone in the darkness, and he hastens to her side. Quick are his feet, but faster moves the train. Darkness gathers while he is yet a half dozen seats away. But the brave man does not falter. He greets alone, he reaches the seat (or thinks he does) and slides into it. Deep are the shadows, and hums the train.

A stream, long and vigorous—a sound of scuffling—a thump or two—and the bright light of a May day breaks upon the scene. The young husband frantically endeavors to disengage himself from the grasp of an angry colored woman sitting in the seat just behind the bride. He at length succeeds and retires sullenly to his seat, wiping his mouth and occasionally spitting upon the floor as if he had bitten through a worm in a fig.

The tunnels come and go, but their shadows are scarcely deeper than those upon the face of the young honeymoon.

A Fearful Fall.

"Say, mister," a small boy shouted, "ain't you afraid of gettin' arrested?"

"No," said the baker, who had been addressed. "What for?"

"For drivin' that wagon around."

"Yes there is, you've got stuff in there that kills people."

"How do you make that out?"

"Why, ain't you got a big lot of pies on?"

"'Til I pion you, you young vagabond," said the baker, driving on heedless of the cry of "Rats!" which the small boy sent after him.

Red Sunsets.

The remarkable sunsets which startled so many parts of the world about a year ago have attracted the attention of scientific men, and a committee of the Royal Society of London has been appointed to investigate their cause. The committee has not yet made its report, but it is believed that it has arrived at the conclusion that the phenomena are not, as was at first supposed, traceable to the volcanic eruptions in Java in August, 1883. In speaking of the epidemic of pneumonia in Philadelphia and New York last winter, an eminent physician of the latter city suggested that it was due to some strange atmospheric conditions, of which the red sunsets were probably the result. As a preventative of throat and lung troubles he strongly advised the use of the new medical discovery—Red Star Cough Cure, which scientists and chemists have found to be absolutely free from morphia or opium, harmless and of remarkable efficacy. Such a remedy, must therefore, prove an undoubted blessing to all.

The Ohio shoe fir.

When Rev. Dr. Y. Peyton Morgan, rector of Trinity church, Cleveland, O., was married last week, some thoughtful friends threw an old shoe after the parting carriage. When the terrified horses saw that Cleveland shod farthings darkly through the affrighted air, they thought it was a barn wafed upon by the wings of a Kansas cyclone, and they made for the timber, broke the double track, went smashing into another carriage and raned Cain generally. When a Cleveland girl leaves her shoe cut in to space, the abashed earthquake that happens to be prowling around in that quarter of the universe crawls under the bed and stays there until the shoe has settled.
