Stuff each with curled hair, bore holes in the tons. and insert a loop from which to anspend them. Make the hairpin cushion by knitting, and loop-stitch a piece to cover the top of the horn. Cover the top of the pln cushion with velvet. Tic the horns together at the bottom, and decorate as desired.

A common turtle shell may be made into an oddlooking box for the library table, and will be found convenient for holdings stamps, pens, etc. When the shell is cleaned and polished, make an oblong box sufficiently low for it to fit over. Glue a rim of cardboard upon the inside of the shell, to fit on the box. Titon make a head, tall and legs of onnet wire, wound with black worsted, and fasten them upon the box. For the foundation of the box, take a piece of thin board and cover the outside with light gray moss; glue the box upon the foundation, and call the mass over the legs, head and tail, so as partly to conceal them. A branch of bright red berries has a very pretty effect in the gray moss, if that can be obtained. In the center of our collection is a piece of rough rock with a pretty bit of summer scenery painted upon it in olls.

A work-bag, very pretty and convenient, is made of two picnic plates with a spray of pressed ferns glued on the outside one. After the ferns have been securely fastened, give it a coat of white varnish. Join the plates with a strip of silk two inches wide, by gluing it on the inside of the plates. Leave an open space of four inches at the top; finish this with an arrow ruffle, and run an elastic through it in such a manner that it may draw the plates together at the top, and still allow them to be readily drawn apart to put the work in. How to Take off a Hide.

The hides of farm-slaughter animals have a poor reputation, because of the careless way in which they are stripped. Calf-skins and sheep-pells are reduced one-half in value by being cut and gashed, and improperty stretched. When a hide is stripped off, it should be stretched at once, and pagged out to Iry, with the flesh side upward. If it is rolled up, or thrown in a heap and left to dry in that shape, it is so mean-lookng that a buyer will offer only half its real value. A few hints in regard to

Afraid of Being Laughed At.

There came to us, as we were going to press with this number, a young man from Down East, with a pathetic story of the manner in which he had been swindled by a band of sharpers here in New York. We immediately proceeded to headquarters with the victim, where the necessary assistance was guaranteed him for recovering his money; but, finding that his name would go into the papers, he decided to go home. "I do not want my friends," he said, "to langh at me," as he left our office. This fear of being ridiculed, really is the secret or the successful operation of so many swindlers here in New York. If every one who has been duped, would immedintely come to this office, and make known the facts, we guaranteee that in YOUNG MEN, from early indiscretion, lack a very short space of time, we should be MIDDLE AGED MES often inck viger, studients able to rid the city of all the various charistans, and imposters, who lie in
