The edition for 1886 of the sterling edical annual, known as Hostetter's Almanae, is now ready, and may be obtained, free of cost, of druggists and general country dealers in all parts of the United States, Mexico, and indeed in every civilized portion of the Western Hemisphere. This almanae has been issued regularly at the commencement of every year for over one-fifth of a century. It combines, with the sounder combines, with the sounder practical advice for the preservation and restoration of health, a large amount of interesting and amosing light reading.
and the calendar, astronomical calculations, chronological items, &c., are prepared with great care, and will be fo entirely accurate. The issue of Hestet-ters' Almanae for 1880 will probably be the largest edition of a medical work ever published in any country. The proprietors, Messrs, Hostetter & Co., Pittsburgh, Pa., on receipt of a two cent stamp, will forward a copy by mail to any person who cannot procure one in his neighborhood.

Fence-Posts for Wet I ands,

Low meadow, and other marsh land s subject to heaving by the frost, and much difficulty is experienced in securing firm fences upon such ground, as the posts are drawn up by the freezing of the surface. To avoid this, much may be done in the way of selecting posts that are larger at one end than th ther. It will help very much to put a trong, durable plu through the botton nd of the post, or to notch it at each dde, and to brace the bottom will flat stone, driven well into th side of the hole with the rammer When the soil is very soft and mucky, I s best to drive the posts, and to make hem hold well in the ground, to spike vedge-shaped pleces to them on each ide, by which they are held firmly in helr places. A swamp fence put down n this way six years ago, has not been seaved by the frost in the least. To drive these posts a wooden man hould be used. This is made of a ection of an elm trunk, or a branch about eight or nine inches in diameter. An iron ring is driven on each end, and vedged all around, the wood at the edge being beaten down over the rings with a hummer or the poll of an axe. To pre vent the posts from splitting, or being mittered too much, the ends of the man should be hollowed a little, and never rounded out, and the ends of the posts hould be heveled all around. The hole n the maul for the handle should be nade larger on one side, and lengthwise f the maul, and the handle spread by two wedges put in in such a way as not to split the maul .- Am. Agriculturist.

A Cloud of Witnesses.

In many instances the opium-eating habit has been contracted through the use of narcotics, prescribed by physicians during sickness. Many remedies which claim to cure coughs contain morphia or opium, and it can easily be understood what a bad effect they must have on children. The new remedy,—Red Star Cough Cure, is entirely free from these dangerous ingredients, and the mass of testimony which has already been collected in its favor from all parts of the country is proof of its wonderful purity and efficacy.

Ridge Plowing We are too apt to neglect to secure the advantages we might have from the beneficent freezing which our northern soil receives every winter. The autumn rains level off the surface of the ground and compact it so that the frosts have comparatively little action. When the surface is frequently frozen and thawed, the amount of stony matter rendered fine and soluble is something surprising. Any one may easily test this in good winter weather, by taking a basinful of small stones, selected from the soil, washing them clean in pure rain water, to freezing and thawing on a window sill. There should be enough water to a little more than simply moisten the pebbles, and on the outside of a window Founded on with a southern exposure, the water will freeze hard at night and thaw when evaporates, the basin and the lowermost pebbles will be found whitened with an incrustation of substances dissolved out of the stones, mixed with more or less HARRIS RESSEDY CO., H'rECHEMISTS grit which has crumbled off from the surface of the stones.

A VERY EASLY MEMORY. She was slight and girlish looking with a comical affectation of motherliess which made her dart after her blue eyed three-year-old girl whenever the little thing came within even ten feet of the edge of the deck. He was evidently not far past his majority and divided his ime between tightly twisting a slight noustache and proudly watching the rolles of his child and girl-wife. They were on the upper forward deck f one of the iron steamboats going down the bay to Coney Island in the afternoon and the other passengers near them forgot to read the afternoon papers or the latest tips on the races while they lisened to the prattle of the child.

As the boat was passing Robbins Reef the little girl, who had been dancing around on one foot and calling to the sea gulls that were floating overhead, suddenly attered a piercing scream that made her mother's face grow pale. Then the turned, buried her head in the maternal lap, and began to weep as if her eart was already broken. All the ladies on the deck gathered around her and selped the frightened mother try to find the wicked pin that must have buried itself to the head somewhere in the child's body, while the father forgot to twist his moustache and looked on helpessly.
