OUR SOUTHERN BUDGET

FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT. RALEIGH, N.C., May 20, 1886

"A big white house With nobody living in it Down in -

The old song says"down in Alabam, o we will let the saying of the song go for what it is worth. It is a fact, how overy of some of his lost property, and ever, that "down in North Carolina" there are "mighty few" "big white houses with nobody living in 'em.' The houses, regardless of color, and al nost of condition, are occupied. An empty house is a novelty. And even an moccupied cabin is quite a rarity. If there is another part of the United States where it seems to be almost a crime to have a house surrounded by grass, I have never beard of it. Where the beauty of a door-yard devoid of grass-an open, eve-destroying plain of white sand-comes in, I have never yet discovered

Now this may sound almost treasonable to readers who have white, glaring, barren door-yards, but it is the truth, and, quoting the sentiment of that eloquent Southron, Henry, of Virginia, 1 oust say, if it is treason it must stand as it is written. And yet experience has shown that fine lawns can be enjoyed even on the saudiest of the sandy lands. I would like to suggest to the ladies of the South that white patches of door yards, where green grass should be grown, are producive of eye disorders and headache.

"Do you see those shade trees?" inquired a noble hearted generous Southern gentleman, pointing to a group of noble oaks, sycamores and gums that threw a cool shade over the sandy soil eneath. Nodding acquiescence, he nade the startling confession that they had cost him many thousands of dollars. RESOURCES AND LIABILITIES OF THE Lost in wonder I asked him to explain. He did so, and the explanation was to the effect that the shade had acted as a wooer, and many hours that should have been devoted to labor had been spent in more quiet rest, in obedience to he mute appeal of the wavin trees.

In-doors and out-doors in the South too much dependance is placed on the the natives. At a point six miles west of St. Augustine, Fortish, on the line of the St. Johns Hallway, lies a beautiful tract of hand which has recently been laid out in a bownstic called, Wast St. Augustine proper is the otdered Wast St. Augustine proper is the otdered with legend fore, and historical authority, and few if any of the many thousands that visit Florida fall to take a look at the Sea Wall, Old Fort, and the many other interesting objects.

It was founded September St., 1866, forty-two years previous to the soticment of Jamestown, Va., and fifty-live years before the landing of the Pilgrims on Plymouth Rock. The amme St. Augustine was given to the place by the Spaniards, became they landed upon the day dedicated to that reversed and learned Saint. St. Augustine is growing rapidly, being the terminus of two railways, and others are being extended toward it, and it is now known as the Hottil, City of Flaniba.

The proprietors and owners of The Halustraked Southers City, porthased a large tract of land near St. Augustine, from Mr. Wm. Astor, and in the midst of the line of the St. Johns Halustrak, the owner by Mr. Astor, and in the midst of the line of the St. Johns Halustraked and within two hundred feet of the railroad, have planted in a plot of 700 acres the city of Wast St. Augustine, from Mr. Wm.
