John 8. 31-38. 44-59: Gotion Textohn 8, 56. Time, the next day after the

It was the morning of the eighth day-The Feast of Tabernaeles was over. It fasted only seven days, but the eighth day was a sort of holy convocation with special sacrifices of its own. Jesus had spent the night with a friend on the Mount of Olives, and now, in the early morning, He reappears in the temple to continue His teachings. Part of the time is spent in the court of the women, but it is evident the latter part of the lesson was delivered to the Gentiles, as that was the only place in the temple in which the people would cast stones at Him, He was nearing the end of Ilis ministry, and in the centre of religious thought and activity, Jeruselem, He now. continues His sublime declarations of Messiahship and the enunciation of those of our race. From Jerusalem the crowds would soon disperse to all parts of the country, and in their harts Jesus sows that blessed seed which to-day yields a magnificent harvest in the earnest lives of His devoted followers. Upon this octhe most benutiful strains of music they ever disconreed. "The Crowning of the May Queon,"-what shall I say of it? Nohling belier than what uproup of hadres remarked, "We could sit all highlet and look at that." The "Three Little Maids from School," was very unique and angliable, as was also the "Qunker Court-ship," by Miss Resaie Wills and Robble Lentz "-this was "eute." "Competing Railroads." led off by Charlie Metrz, was good, and so was "Personating Olders," by Lizzle Leniz and Lizzle Schoch. "Uninprecisted Genius" created a roar of haghter, Miss Daisy Hibbler represented the negligent housewife so naturally that we should really feel disinclosed to "propose." was true economy was, and G. W. Morthim er, as "Metheur" was field G. W. Morthim casion the was the central figure in the temple as He had been on the previous days of the feast. An eager crowd is gathered round Him, and to them He delivers His message of freedom. "Ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free." These words raised an angry storm of indignant protest from His hearers. If the Jew prided himself on one thing it was his freedom. He conveniently forgot the captivities, over-looked national defeats, ignored the present actual serfdom to Rome, and al-ways imagined himself blessed with free-She taught her hoshand, Francis Bachmatt, what true economy was, and G. He or site, we don't know which, brought down the house when she remarked in true Irish brorne, "that her cousin, Anale O'Flynn had done poorly when she numried George Briton McGellan Rhdoiph Stocker." "The Train to Mauro"-Miss Emma Reber as "Mrs. Butternilk," in her natural, rolliek-ing style, slammed and banged around the tickel office that brought forth loud and bong mecorse, she quizzed the agent, Dr. W. W. Rober, 46 the fullest extent of all human ps-tence, and he in return represented the con-celled, crusty, snappish teket agent, or to life, as though he alone were periodion and owned the whole road. But Mrs. Butternilk diduct care a "blanked bang," "her varbo and gools and plasters were the best fing in the world, why,bless you, they send for them il around the country for astima and sich like," tom. A part of his morning prayer was: Blessed be the Lord our God, King of the Universe, who has made me a free man." The Jew looked back to Abraham, from whom he claimed descent, and con from whom he channed descent, and con-tended that as Abraham's son he was free. With such feelings it was difficult for them to understand Christ's words, for He mught them of spiritual freedom. They looked for a Messiah who would restore the national cleav, and yet they They looked for a Messiah who would restore the national glory, and yet they could not comprehend that "truth" with-out which there can be no permanent mational glory. Their pride of descent was a false light to them; their descent availed them nothing; they were slaves to sin and form and ritual. They were not fit for national independence and its attendant honors: they were not fit for attendant honors; they were not fit for that spiritual kingdom which Christ came to establish, so he tanght them the divine principle of liberty, "Ye shall know the truth and truth shall make you free." For it is only in the truth shart make you free." For it is only in the truth of Jesus that we can get perfect freedom from the slavery of sin and thus be fitted for the true citizenship of Christ's King-dom. It will be well for the world when it learns this lesson, as the principle here taught by Christ furnishes the solution to those great social and ceono-mic questions which now agitate society. Our Saylor closed His discourse by reassorting His divinity, as He declared that He existed before Abraham.
