WARNING TO JUDAS AND PETER. PHOSPHATE John 13, 21-38. Golden Text, I Cor., Time and place, same as last lesson. This lesson contains one of the most impressive and thrilling scenes in the history of the disciples. They were gathered round the table partaking of the Passover supper, when Jesus told them that one of their number would betray Him.

To some this must have been a great surprise, and it is no wonder that the fervent and ermest Peter should desire to know who the trafftor was, He beekons across the table to John, the beloved disciples, "that he should ask who it should te." John asked the Master and was told that it was the one to whom He would give the sop, when He had dipped it. "And when He had dipped the sop, he gave it to Judas Iscariot.

Then Jesus told nim to do his work Then Jesus told nim to do his work quickly. Judas went out into the dark-ness of the night to prepare for that terrikle betrayal which stands without a parallel in history. Judas was warned by Christ, and yet he fell. After some for their remarks our Lord gave His new commandment, "That ce love one another, as I have loved you, that ye also love one another." It was at this point that the impetuous

It was at this point that the impetuous Peter, referring to a previous remark of Christ's, "Whither I go ye can not come," asked Him wither He went. When assured that he could not then follow his Master, he broke out with the vehement assertion, "I will lay down my life for Thy sake."

Observe the answer of Jesus, who read his heart. "Wilt thou lay down thy life for my sake? Verily, verily, I say unto thee, the cock shall not crow, till thou hast denied Me thrice."

he was able to rise again. We have here the contrast between the two characters. In each case the fall was gradual. In the case of Judas it was complete; in grand, is beloved by the church of God in every land. All that our Lord did for Judas was of no avail; he went on to his dreadful and tragic death.

But one look from the Master melted the heart of Peter, and he came back a better and a truer man. LESSON THOUGATS.
