WE ARE CHANGED.

BLACKWOOD,

We feel our love has long grown cold,

And yet we dare not own

Has o'er our spirits grown,

That, day by day, a slient change

With words of former tencerness

We strive to muck our fears.

Oh, would to God that we had died

As we were once of old,

Before our love grew cold.

We see it, though our eyes the while Are blinded by our tears;

But we are changed. We are not one,

We've struggled hard against our fate.

As wayworn men strive with the cold

The bitter truth reveal— The world knows not, must never know

That we are changed. We are not one,

As we were once of old.
Oh, would to God that we had died

Bound, like the felon bound of yore,

Each moment more decay, In secret we must hig our bonds,

Till death will set us free, I weep, my wife, to think that I

As we were once of old. Oh, would to God that we had died.

Before ourlove grew cold,

Unto the fifeless clay, Linked to a love long dead, that shows

Have forged these chains for thee:

For we are changed. We are not one,

Just meek enough for submission,

Just bold enough to be brave:

Just pride enough for ambition,

Just thoughtful enough to be grave.

That puts you at once at your ease,

Generous enough, and kind hearted,

Pure as the angels above; Ob, from her may I never be parted,
