Memorial Anniversary. Saturday, June 4th, will be the 25th anniversary of the great flood in the Lehigh valley, the most destructive in our creek and rivers within the memory of living man. The rain had come down in torrents, and the poor mortals whose business prevented them from staying indoors had good reason to believe that a second flood of the Noah kind was at hand. The Lehigh river presented a scene which we think and hope no one will ever see again. Bridges, boats, stables, houses, piles of lumber, logs and goods of almost every character within the reach of the water, came floating down on the angry currents. Millions of dollars worth of property was destroyed, and by many the 4th of June, 1862, will long be remembered as a day upon which hundreds of lives were lost in the flood.—Ex.
