GREAT CHANGE.

Those who contrast the condition of the United States in 1870 with that of 1887, see a wonderful difference. Then all was infastion; now all is leard dan. Then all was boom; now all is business. So those who contrast the condition of the mercantile business. So those who contrast the condition of the mercantile business in Lehighton previous to 1876 with that from 1876 up to the present date, see a wonderful difference. Then high prices reigned; now low prices rule. Then high may be persuaded to place trust in them. Them. The may be persuaded to place trust in them. Them all was infast them. They are at present roaming about North-ampton counts, and at Morrestown last week swindled an aged lady out of $20. They ings, made to order, was never larger now low. Our prices range from the coats must be sold at striking prices and overcoats. The may be positively cheaper than elsewhere. Our was unsue be sold at striking prices and overcoats. The may be positively cheaper than elsewhere. Our was never larger now to reason the may be positively cheaper than elsewhere. Our was must be sold at striking prices and overcoats. The may be positively cheaper than elsewhere. Our was must be sold at striking prices and overcoats. The may be posi there were only a meagnestocks to purchase from; now there is a large and magnificent one from which to select. Then King Credit held full sway; now cash is the power of the day. Then through the credit system, customers were dependent; now, through customers were dependent; now, through the eash system, they are independent. The present condition has been brought about by us. In 1876 we fining open the doors of our store, which contained a tremendous stock at prices that astonished everyone. And ever since we have been written and increasing stocks to such cutting prices and increasing stocks to such an extent, that now goods can be purchased from a large assortment at prices as low, and in some instances lower, than in the cities.
