How To Raiss Good Calvon. The choice of a pure-bred bull of some eknowledged dairy breed and of good haracter should be made, and in three or four generations the progeny, if well selected, will partake of the good qualities of the pure beed. Half-bred Jersey, duernsey or Ayrshire calves have been ound equally valuable for product with the re-bred ones. The calf thus well bred reans necessary that the calf should be fed pon fresh milk from the cow. Cream and at are not required for a calf intended for the dairy, but a good frame of bones covered with healthful muscular tissue. These are well and fully supplied by skimmed milk, given warm, and at a temperature almost ound to that of the stomach. Eighty deuilk for a young calf. An excellent method of teeding a calf intended for the dairy Ladies', Gent's and Children's Shoes. is as follow. In-door Root Grafting. Preparations for root grafting in winter could be made beforehand, by securing ons and stocks. The stocks usually one year old seedlings for apples, should be taken up, tled in bundles of twenty or fifty for convenience in counting, and heeled-in in a cellar, or place where they will not freeze. In large nursuries root grafting is lone very rapidly by a division of labor. One hand prepares the stocks, another ino work upon one at a time, to avoid the danger of mixing. In some cases machines and soft cotton twine, prepared by running t through mellow grafting wax and loosely seling it on a reel, is preferred to stripes of waxed cloth. As the grafts are completed, they are set in snamo's boxes with soil under and between them labeled, and stored in a cellar, where they must be looked to, especially as spring approaches, and if getting too dry, sparingly war cred. If a recent settler wishes to plant an orchard, and cannot well spare the money to very small outlay. Most of the Western nurseries make a specialty of root grafts. One who buys a lot of root grafts had berer bed them the first year, i. c., dibble them in, in a bed of good sell, a foot apart or less. Thus placed they can be cared for on a small area. The gratts should be nubled in with great care, the soil being firmly packed against the root, and the top bud of the cion just above the surface. Having the plants all together in this way,

Pruning the Peach for Fruit

The peach tree fruits on the previous year's growth, not on spurs like other rees; bence the aim of the orchardist should be to keep the young growth alive a through the center of the tree. To that end the outer growth should be thinned so as to admit the light and air. Also a part of the young growth should be cut back to a stump about an inch long, that new growth may form for the following year ruiting. The peach tree needs more pruning than any other orchard tree, and very few growers pruncenough.-It.

Moving Large Trees

The proper way to remove a large tree is to first cut away the roots by digging a trench about ten feet in diameter around it. removing the earth and retilting with new of a great mass of fibrous roots around the tree. The next year the tree may be removed, but the top should be cut back
