OUR PHILADELPHIA LETTER

PHILADELPHIA Pa., March 28, '88 It is estimated that the rigid enforcement of the Brooks' High License Law will throw out of employment over 18,000 people. This includes 10,000 brewery emploves, and the balance saloon keepers, bartenders and such other help as is connected with the "wet grocery business." In this wise and to these employees this law will not be such a blessing, while it may be a God-send to many poor women and children. If it has the latter effect it will prove a great good, if not it will be a perversion of the good intent.

During the late storm the Philadelphia reall was handled and transferred at the postoffice not by the bag, but by the ton over forty tons of mail matter was gathered in the mail depositories by the time the blockade was broken.
