From Washington: News Notes.

Special to the CARBON ADVOCATE.

WASHINGTON D. C., April 9, 1888 Easter Monday, or"egg-rolling day," as it is known to the children of Washington, is looked forward to with even greater anticipation by the juvenile portion of the population than are any of the holidays. Just how the custom of rolling eggs originated, I have been unable to ascertain. It is a purely local institution, and had its origin many years ago. Formerly the Capitol grounds were given up to the children upon Easter Monday, but for some reason it was decided two or three years since to throw open the White House grounds instead, This year the children were fortunate enough to have a clear and pleasant Easter Monday, and early in the day the crowds commenced to appear from every section of the city. They came in carriages, in dain.y little frocks and accompanied by nurse maids in white caps, they came in street cars and on foot until the grounds surrounding the Executive Mansion were fairly swarming with children of every color and all possible descriptions. All social barriers were severed and all met upon a truly democratic equality. The dainty little tot from the west end could be seen rolling her eggs down the terraces to the little Arab whose clay-stained clothes were suggestive of the alley. All were happy together.

When the President came down stairs to hold his public reception at mid-day, he found thatt the children had invaded the East Room in such numbers as to fill every available nook and corner, and as each* had brought with him a supply of hard boiled eggs which in some unaccountable way he managed to accidently drop upon the floor or break upons the furniture, the appear-ance of the room at the close of this novel reception can be better imagined than de-scribed. The President however, took it all good naturedly, and had a pleasant word for all

Although the Fresheat however, took it alt good naturedly, and had a pleasant word for all. Although the Senate has done much practically notking has been accomplished by the Honse of Representatives since Wednesday last. The bill providing for the refunding of the tax of 1861 was taken up on Wednesday and it was soon apparent that the friends of the bill were decidedly in the majority. The opponents of the bill at once resorted to fillbustring in order to prevent final action being taken. Every attempt to secure a vole upon the bill was met by motion after motion, each involving a call of the roll. Fourteen of the states failed to have the quota of tax allotted to them, and these states appear to be indebted to the foverment in the sum of about $3,000,000, while the other states hope by the passage of the bill to have the $17,000,000 collected from them refunded. The amount to be refinded to the tax payers to New York state will be nearly $3,000,000. This generally believed that the President fusciec Waits, at an early date, and it is probable that none of the gentlemen whose amous have so prominently figured as candi-dates for the office will be nearly figured as candi-dates for the office will be setted. It is thought that the nomines will some from one of the Eastern States. H.
