In this way of making nominations the humblest Democratic voter would be just as great, just as important and of just as much influence as he who by long association had been placed in a commanding and dictatory position, under the delegate

Carbon county has over 3500 Democratic yeters. Under the delegate system a candidate who would poll 500 or 1500 of thes yotes could be nominated as against the man who might poll 2000 votes. Under the Crawford County System the 2000 would beat the 500 or 1500 every time. Is there anything unjust or unfair about this?

Take for instance a district like Lehigh sates 101 votes and his opponent 100, yet in this poll the opponent would have no representation whatever although he had within 1 vote one-half of the entire vote Abolish the machine for it is unpopular, and substitute instead the will and wish of esses at the November polls.
