There is a Reaper whose name is Death.

And, with his sickle keen. He reapes the bearded given at a breath, And the flowers that grow between.

He gazed at the howers with teachil eyes,

Dear tokens of the earth are they, They shall all bloom in fields of light. Transplanted by my care,

And saints, upon their garments white. These sacred blossoms wear," And the mother gave, in tears and pain, She knew she should find them all again

In the fields of light above. O, not in cruelty, not in wrath, The Reaper came that day: T was an angel visited the green earth. And took the flowers away.
