Job Work

All Kind of Job Work; Neat and Cheap at this Office.

We, not infrequently, hear of new devices of obliterating the marks from postage stamps and of the danger that is going to happen to the revenue of the postoffice from the fraudulent use to which they may be put. Pay no attention to these humbugs, advises the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, for they are speculators. Take it for granted that the government employs scientific men who know more than the counterfeiters, and the latter know more about such matter than the speculators. The government has thoroughly investigated the matter, and has arrived at an understanding after arduous experiments. If it loses anything by washed postage stamps one would scarcely imagine the trouble is required to arrive at an absolutely safe combination that will resist water, alkalis and acids. It was once a serious question. At first it was proposed to use certain kinds of paper, but this proved not feasible, because a skillful operator could wash off the ink without injuring the paper. Then experiments were concentrated on the printing, and water colors were proposed which would wash off with the application of water. But it was found that the heat of summer had the same effect. Still another method was to have the ink fixed in the paper, but acids easily took out the color. Finally a simple plan was arrived at. This was to make the ink of materials which chiefly compose ordinary writing ink, and, therefore, would destroy the marking on the stamp, which would be of the same quality and character. A seasonable remark: "Pass the salt, please."

Time gellops under the spur of the moment. A nine to play ball in material districts—quinine. It is the miser who is always in need of a chest protector. Bismark of course considers that all is fair in war, but he is not so ready to concede that it is all fair in love. Bowler (looking over breakfast table)—Liver—is that all there is for breakfast, Sarah? Sarah—Sure, sir; there's liver enough there for six. Professional gamblers have a great many superstitions. One of the most practical is, that if they deal the cards themselves they have a much better chance to win.

There is a little girl in New York whose commerce interests are so precocious that she rents furnished rooms in her doll's house to her sisters for a fixed number of caramels each week. A western baseball supply dealer places the usual array of bats and balls in his window, and then adds to them a large roll of court plaster, a huge bottle of arnica and a pair of crutches.

"Gentlemen," said the Arkansas lawyer to the backwoods jury, "it's a fact that my client was caught fooling around another man's span of mules. But while he may be mistaken when he says that he took the mules out of the stable to water them because their brutal owner had neglected to attend to their wants, I tell you, gentlemen, that my client can outshoot, with a rifle, any man within the sound of my voice."

"That's a lie," yelled the jury in chorus. The prisoner was found not guilty. It hardly seems possible, but is vouched for on good authority, that any one driving a few miles in a certain section of Pennsylvania during haying time could have counted nine young women driving two-horse mowers and seventeen others managing horse-rakes. The more special reason why this seems improbable is that sensible young men, seeing such a sight, would have proposed out of hand, rode off at once on the horse-rake to the nearest ministers and taken the girls with them.

"Very well, gentlemen," said the lawyer, "if you send my client to prison you give him no chance to prove his claims. If you are generous, and want to see some of the best shooting ever done in Ozark, you have only to acquit the client and set up a mark for him to shoot at."

Prudence! Prudence! In medication, as in most else, prudence should be our guide. Yet thousands rush to the winds. Every new nostrum finds its patrons, the medical empirics of every false school have their quack. Every change in the genus of humbug is rung successfully for a time at least—the notes being furnished by the credulous. In happy contrast to the many advertised impostures of the day stands Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, now in its third decade of popularity, approved and recommended by physicians, endorsed by the press of many lands, sought and prized by invalids everywhere. It is an ascertained specific for prevention of malarial diseases, chronic indigestion, liver complaint and constipation, checks the growth rheumatism and neuralgia, is perfect invigorant and useful diuretic. Nervous people benefit by it.

Items of Importance. —Near the close of a journey let the horse walk. —Bran will pay the milk seller, but oats the butter-maker. —Never wash a horse with cold water when he is heated. —Use land in which some cultivated crop grew last year. —The cropping process diminishes the supply of plant food. —The humble cow peas does not receive the attention it merits. —Sheep are often injured by roaming through tall, wet grass. —It is inhuman to allow a sharp-pointed rooster to run with hens. —Swedish turnips, parsnips and carrots are all excellent for fattening hogs. —If the hog pasture gets short this month, roots and pumpkins can be used to supplement it. —Do not stink your horses in the use of salt, especially in the spring time. A horse ought to have a pound a week of it, if he wants it. Throw it in the end of his box; then he can help himself as he wishes. —Young colts are as fond of petting as kittens are, and little fondling every day will do them good. By being handled kindly often, they soon become gentle and docile, and are much more easily handled when they become horses.

Reducing the Surplus. The disposition of the surplus in the U.S. Treasury engages the attention of our statesmen, but a more vital question has our attention, and that is the reduction of the surplus. Since the discovery of the introduction of Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, there has been a marked decrease in the mortality from this dreaded disease, and it is possible to still further reduce the number of consumptives. How? By keeping constantly at hand, but not using, Dr. King's New Discovery until such a cough, a cold, a sore throat, a chest, or a side pain. Taken thus early a cure is guaranteed. Trial bottles, free at T. D. Thomas.

Winter Dairying. The chief advantages of winter over summer dairying, says a writer in the Country Gentleman, consist in having the greater part of the season's make of butter to sell when the price is highest; in having less trouble to make and market a good article in cool weather; in making the milking season considerably longer, and the quantity for the season considerably greater; and in being able to raise better calves, because they will be so much older and larger than spring calves to eat grass in the summer, and endure the rigors of the ensuing winter. The disadvantage is in having to feed more meal and bran to make good winter butter, and to keep up a full flow of milk till grass comes, when the meal can be taken away without the yield falling off, though if it be continued the flow will increase. Feeding liberally with meal and bran makes winter butter cost more than grass butter, but the higher price of the winter market more than pays the additional expense for feed.

Science in the Household. There is least enough wasted around an ordinary kitchen range—to say nothing of the furnace—to furnish all the power needed to run a sewing machine, pump water for an elevator, and light the dwelling by electricity. The same waste of heat of the cooking apparatus might be used to cool the house in summer and to dispense with the ice bill. When nitrate of ammonia, for example, is dissolved in water it absorbs an enormous amount of heat and the principle is readily applied in the construction of refrigerating chambers. Properly elaborated and located these could be arranged as to keep meats etc., better than the ordinary ice box, the cool water for drinking more wholesome than the average ice supply, and to send volumes of cold air down through shafts to registers in the ceilings of rooms so that the heat of summer might be tempered as certainly as the cold of winter. The same supply of the ammonia salt may be used repeatedly by evaporating the water, for which purpose the waste heat above spoken of could be utilized. The possibilities of applied science in the household have not been even nibbled at.

Oyster Leaves. With a pointed, sharp knife cut off the tops of some small round French rolls, scrape out the crumbs and fry them crisp in clarified butter, stew as many oysters as needed. First, however, remove the fringe or "beard" and cut them in two. Fill the rolls with oysters, well mixed with the crumbs, add a bit of butter to each, put on the lids and set in the oven to brown. Serve with fried bread crumbs sprinkled over them.

One of the new fabrics is a serge foul, a fine serge with graceful draping qualities. —Learn to deny yourself. —Conducts are generally monotonous. —Shiloh's Consumption Cure. No. 1. What a careless, even derelict, habit your borrower! What contempt for money, accounting it (your and mine especially) no better than dross. A cold of unusual severity which I took last autumn developed into a difficulty decidedly curable in all its characteristics, threatening a return of my old chronic malady, catarrh. One bottle of Ely's Cream Balm completely eradicated every symptom of that painful and prevailing disorder. —E. W. Warner, 165 Hudson St., Rochester, N. Y.

Catarrh.—For twenty years I was a sufferer from catarrh of the head and throat. By a few applications of Ely's Cream Balm I received decided benefit—was cured by one bottle.—Charlotte Parker, Waverly, N. Y.

A price has, in health, need but of eyes and ears, his mouth only serving him for smiling. —Prices are brought up to live with all the world—all the world ought to be up to live with prices. Consumption Surely Cured. To the Editor.—Please inform your readers that I have a positive remedy for the above named disease. By its timely use thousands of hopeless cases have been permanently cured. I shall be glad to send two bottles of my remedy free to any of your readers who have consumption if they will send me their express and postage. Respectfully, T. A. Slocum, M. D., 181 Pearl St., New York.

Some people can defend their lives with the horns of a bull, others have but snails' horns. —Man is a violin, and it is only when the last chord is broken that he becomes a piece of wood. Simmons Liver Regulator produces no unpleasant effect upon the stomach no matter how long it is taken. A little taken at night induces refreshing sleep and a natural evacuation of the bowels. A little taken in the morning sharpens the appetite, cleanses the stomach and extends the breath. "I never recommend a medicine unless I know it to be good. In a ministry of twenty-five years I have often felt the need of such a medicine, and when I found it I exclaimed: 'Eureka!'"—Rev. J. P. HARPER, Proprietor "Christian Visitor," Smithfield, N. C.

Common Sense. Should be used in attempting to cure that very disagreeable disease, catarrh. A catarrh originates in impurities in the blood, local applications can do no permanent good. The common sense method of treatment is to purify the blood, and for this purpose there is no preparation superior to Hood's Sarsaparilla. That this peculiar medicine does cure catarrh is shown by the many testimonials from people who have found relief upon using it when all others had failed. A book containing statements of cures sent on receipt of two-cent stamp, by C. I. HOOD & CO., Lowell, Mass.

The great successes of the world have been affairs of a second, a third, nay, a fifth trial. —It is worth a column of rhetoric, said an American statesman. It is a fact, established by the testimony of thousands of people, that Hood's Sarsaparilla does cure scrofula, salt rheum, and other diseases or affections that impair the state or low condition of the blood. It also overcomes that tired feeling, creates a good appetite, and gives strength to every part of the system. "Try it."

The truth is not to be spoken at all times. —We will stand what we ought to do; but when we deliberate we play booty against ourselves; our consciences direct as one way, our corruptions hurry one another. —"Blood tells." We may not be able to infuse royal oil into a dead horse, but we can infuse it into a living one, all impurities and poisonous humors by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Pure blood is the best kind of royal blood.

—If somebody worse off than yourself, and you will find you are better off than you fared. —Fashion is only gold front jewelry, it may appear well, but the value is not there. —Slender is a simile which evens people throw on others better than themselves. —Easy is blind. —Least said, soonest mended.
