-Mrs. Margaret Kreidler, of Bath, aged eighty-three years, mother of our townsmen Marry and Daniel Kreidler, died on Wednesday of last week, and was interred in the cemetary at that place on Saturday. Deceased was the mother of twelve child ren: eight boys and four girls, seven of whom survive. She was of the old school of Evangelicalism; an earnest Christian and a faithful desciple of the Great Ruler.

-We don't know for a certainty, but it is our candid opinion, based on long ex-perience, that St. Peter won't have much to do with the individual who takes a paper for two or three years, and then by bare-faced lying and double-action equivocation cheats the printer out of the price of it. The devil may take 'em in, but two to one won't be more than pleased with them

-While extinguishing the lights in the Presbyterian church on Sunday evening the chandelier broke from its fastenings and fell to the floor, breaking the lamps and starting a buge blaze. Fortunately Philip Miller and John Stark were present, and the fire was soon succumbed by their earnest efforts.

-Preparatory services will be held in the resbyterian church on Saturday evening, cordial invitation is extended to the members, and all persons desiring to con-nect themselves with the church, to be present. Dr. Belville has signified his in-tention of being present. -Henry Miller, of Weissport, will not

Raster In Our Churches.

Of all events in the church calendar year none are observed with more christian plety and reverance than are Christmas and Easter. Christmas brings to mind with reverential force the humble birth of our Savior in a manger in the city of Bethlehem, while about Easter day clusters in scintilications of christian truth and glory the crucifixion and resurrection of the Son of God who died for the redemption of mankind from the wickedness and folly of the world.

Stauffer, a native of According to announcement, confirmation and preparatory services were held on Good Friday morning, and Holy Communion was celebrated in the Towamensing church, T. A. Huber, pastor, on Easter Sunday morning. Long before the time for opening services arrived, the various roads leading to the church were lined with carriages and people. The large and correducious church was filled to its utmost capacity, not being room enough to accommodate all who were in attendance. The number present was estimated in round numbers at one thousand. The occasion was improved by a sermon from the pastor numbers at one thousand.
