

The Carbon Advocate

SEWINGTON, PENNA.

SATURDAY, MAY 4, 1890.

ENTERED AT THE LEHIGHTON POST-OFFICE AS SECOND CLASS MAIL MATTER.

COMMENCING WITH THIS ISSUE THE CARBON ADVOCATE will be supplied to Trade subscribers to make no their terms of subscription. The good will of the above paper has been purchased by the management and merged into the ADVOCATE.

ELSEWHERE IN TO DAY'S ISSUE WE reproduce from Local Miscellany of the American Lane Magazine, the W. M. Rapner's highly interesting article on Title-Deeds. Just at this time title-deeds, or the single tax issue is commanding the attention of the most intelligent thinkers and writers of the age so that Mr. Rapner's thesis is quite seasonable and worthy of perusal.

CANADA HAS PASSED A LAW CREDITABLE to herself and beneficial to the United States, inasmuch that hereafter United States bondholders will be unable to find an asylum within her jurisdiction. The action of the Canadian government is timely and commendable considering that of the past decade American "thieves" have lived in style and affluence in her chief cities, their ease and safety being an encouragement to greater frauds in this country.

HON. MICHAEL CASSIDY OF THE LAW firm of Rapner & Cassidy, of March Chunk, is being favorably mentioned by the newspapers throughout the state, as a strong man for the Democratic nomination of State Treasurer. Mr. Cassidy utterly repudiates the suggestion that he is a candidate or ever thought of being one, as he says he is fixed in his resolve to devote himself entirely to the practice of his profession. This course settles it, still it is a matter of common remark, even among his political opponents, that it will be a very easy thing for the Convention to nominate a man having less strength and sterling qualities for that important public trust than Mr. Cassidy possesses.

BROADBRIEN'S N. Y. LETTER.

As I remarked last week everything has to give way to the coming of the Centenary celebration. The air is full of it, the stores are full of it. Everybody is full of it. It is a delicate subject I know, but the question is forced upon us, whether we will or no, and that is, Was George W. as correct a man as posterity supposes him to be? When we promise to give a free blow out, we counted all there was in sight, and came to the conclusion that we would carry them all in a hackney coach with a one horse buggy contingent, but counted without our boss, for from present appearances there will be enough of Washington to fill the Lexington's collar and fill the Opera House and cram the surrounding streets. Now, mind you, these are no sham relations, or as they say in the classic vernacular of Chatham street, no "snides," but the real, genuine Simon Pure article, and no mistake, and every one of them comes with a carefully prepared pedigree, straight as a string, from himself to George Washington.

In my last I spoke of the immense influx of thieves and of the measures taken by the police to prevent their depredations on our visitors. A bill was introduced in Albany intending to give the police enlarged powers in arresting well known professional pickpockets and thieves, and its passage caused rather a stormy discussion which brought Dry Dollar Sullivan to the front. Who is Dry Dollar Sullivan, you ask? He may not be known outside, but in New York we know him very well. The Sixth Ward, which Mr. Sullivan represents in the Legislature of the State, is the great center of thieves, gamblers, barolts, gamblers and all sorts of disreputable characters with which this city is cursed. There are very many very bad places in New York; places where your life would not be safe, if you were known to have a dollar in your pocket, but among all there is nothing quite so bad as the Sixth Ward. It is not a large Ward. It can be crossed in any direction in ten minutes, but within its narrow limits many eminent citizens of the Sixth Ward have ended their days, the expenses of their taking off being defrayed by the county. The Fifth Ward, which is in the center of the Ward, and the wretched space from which the Points radiate is, in the very iron of fate, called Paradise Park, through its associations for a hundred and fifty years have been called Paradise, and it is supposed to be the very opposite of Paradise. In old colonial days it was a plague spot, then far on the outskirts of the city. Part of its domain was occupied by a block of ponds, in the center of which was an island on which the executioner took place. It has sustained its evil reputation from that day to this. The most respectable business men in the city, though thieves and gamblers are held in high repute. Its most prominent politicians have graduated from the rum shops and gambling halls, and one of its choicest products is Dry Dollar Sullivan, who now represents the Ward. That Mr. Sullivan is deficient in the three R's is not to his credit, for his opportunities were few and his constituents did not require it. His competitors, Paddy Walsh and Paddy Diver, without warrant and who were charged with intended to protect visitors during the Centenary celebration, was up before the Legislature, Dry Dollar Sullivan was found a fitting place in the list of the three R's. For, if he threatened a large portion of his constituents with not only the loss of their liberty, but also it deprived them of one of the most profitable opportunities in the century. The gold watches they have missed, the pocket-books they would have raked in, the purses, the hats, the money, No wonder that Dry Dollar felt outraged, and besides this much of the money looted in these successful raids would have found a resting place in the pockets of Dry Dollar Sullivan. Inspector Bays says it's a thieves' den, and that robbers are the companions of the individual who represents the Sixth Ward in the Legislature of New York. We know long before he found a home in State Prison. Alderman John J. Jaehne was a receiver of stolen goods. It is flattering to our amour propre to know that these are the men that represent us in our State and Municipal councils, who are their aid politics could not be successfully run in this city.

The true, "de pity" and pity, 'tis true. The bill I trust will pass, for it is our intention to make this city so safe during the celebration that, while we will not be quite prepared to ask our country friends to leave their wallets on the telegraph poles and lamp posts, still as far as human care and foresight can do it, Superintendent Hyman will see to it that the streets of this city are so safe, that the average countryman, with ordinary care, can see everything have a good time, and get back home without the loss of a dollar.

Easter Sunday came to us as one of the most glorious days of the year. For the first time this season the south wind came genial and warm, and nature responding to the challenge, seemed to leap into sudden and glorious life. Everywhere was out of doors, the Parks were full, and our German population, who take their greatest pleasure in the open air, fairly revelled in the warm and inviting sunshine. Our German friends do not resemble their English or American countrymen. Instead of putting twenty dollars in his pocket and starting off alone to have a good time, Hans takes his wife and all the children, and for a long stay, bring him along too. And so the whole family start off, and the German will have a better time with all his family of two dollars and a half, than an Englishman or an American can have alone on twenty.

Glorious was it all the churches. Grand anthems of thanksgiving and praise rolled up to heaven, rejoicing that Christ has risen, not less to-day than nineteen hundred years ago. Love, Christ, it is a season of blessed and open handed charity, bringing joy and gladness to the homes of the poor. Next to the splendid music come the flowers which every year grow more magnificent—the floral decorations this year surpassing anything ever before seen in New York. Brooklyn, too, covered herself with glory in her Easter celebrations; Dr. Talmage's Tabernacle, as usual, coming well to the fore. The reverend Doctor is a great lover of music and flowers; he knows how to make these appeals to the popular heart. A simple paucity of a crimson anemone will furnish his staple material for a sermon that will reach the world. So Easter, Christmas, New Year's and Thanksgiving are always great days at the Tabernacle.

A strange case occurred in Brooklyn this week which has set the town a talking. A very respectable young woman had a young man arrested for assault, and he was safely lodged behind prison bars. The lady was handsome, well dressed and refined, and the man was the most brutal, dirty, besotted kind of a tramp. Then the tramp claimed the woman as his wife, and the woman repudiated the claim. When brought into Court face to face the woman dropped on the floor like a shot, and it was some time before the trial could go on. When it did proceed the most extraordinary state of affairs was shown ever heard in a Police Court. It appears the parties met several years ago and the girl ran away from home with this young man, who then occupied a very good position, and lived with him as his wife. After a time she returned to her father's house and introduced him as her husband, and the couple lived with her parents ever a year, the young man doing nothing to support his wife. Suddenly while compelled to leave or work he informed her parents that he had never married her daughter and left. Then he sought to compel her to live with him, assailing her in the streets, and wherever she got employment to support herself and child, he denounced her to her employers as an improper person, and told the story of her shame. Finally, maddened by his cowardly persecutions, she had him arrested, and notwithstanding his offer to marry her she landed him in the penitentiary.

As the owner of a fast trotting stock Robert Bonner, the most noted owner of the Royal Blood, and Maud S., has a claim in the United States, if in the world. I saw him at the Tracy sale last week, and he himself entirely to the practice of his profession. This course settles it, still it is a matter of common remark, even among his political opponents, that it will be a very easy thing for the Convention to nominate a man having less strength and sterling qualities for that important public trust than Mr. Cassidy possesses.
