LOVE IS BEST. Mellen, Prothome and Fair, Life is joyous, not a care. Love you know not, neither sorrow: Live today and trust to-morrow.

THE FALLEN PINE. The poet tells us of a period (it is always "a long time ago") when all the animals conversed as well as sung, and when—few believe the immortal legends—every creature thing had its expressive tongue.

When you buy a pair of shoes you want a good fit. But if you need SPECTACLES it is much more important that the eyes should be accommodated with correct lenses and a properly fitting frame which will bring the lens directly before the centre of the eye.

There is, by a way, a great fallen pine. You see it in the distance, standing in the midst of its companions—pines (not red-wood) with a girth of more than thirty feet at your height above their base.

Verbal Slips. The verbal slip that a preacher or lecturer inadvertently makes is a thing which has long and steadily been increasing in number and variety.

Origin of the Dog. The question of the origin of the dog has recently been discussed by Professor Nehring, who believes that it has descended from various still surviving species of wolves and jackals.

Robinson—Jones, what do you suppose they put little mirrors into the crowns of some hats for? Jones—Oh, I suppose it's so a man can tell when his beginning to get bald.—Once a Week.

HOW THEY WRITE. F. R. Stockton dictates to a long hand writer. Ella Wheeler Wilcox "composes pen in hand."

Amelia Rives, a beginner, says: "I always use pen and ink in writing and never dictate." George Korman, the Russian explorer, writes his stories in lead pencil, then dictates them to a typewriter.

Mr. W. D. Howells, the novelist, writes as follows: "I have a weak wrist, and I use a typewriter whenever I have a passage very distinctly in mind, or a bit of plain sailing before me."

Her Only Poem Made a Hit. A very bright girl, the daughter of a congressman, and well known in Washington society during the past winter, is a great reader of poetry.
