SATURDAY, JUNE 8, 1889

LOCAL EVENTS CUT UP.

—Our public schools closed a successful nine months term on Thursday, and the teachers, Prof. Stetler, W. E. Smith, Misses Hattie Koons, Aggie Hauk, Ella Graver, Alice Mantz, Laura Weldaw, Emma Koons, Mary Dreibelbies, Myra Good and Mrs. Myra Deifenderfer can seek rest and recocation from their labors happily composed in the thought that their earnest efforts have been fruitful of good results. The schools to day are on a more substantial basis than before with the promise of changes and greater effects for the year to come.

—The body of George Fehnel, the Lehigh Gap station agent who was drowned in the river at that place on the 31st, was recovered two miles below Cherryford on Saturday morning at about nine o'clock. Coroner Weaver, of Northampton county held an inquest after which the dead body was returned to his sorrow stricken family. It is supposed that the body was fastened to underbrush and that the recent high waters loosened it from its fastenings with the above result.

—Children's Day in the First Presbyterian church on Sunday a week will be an interesting occasion. It will be the first time that the event has been celeorated by this denomination in our borough and it bids fair to be a successful one. One of the principal features of the exercises will be the breaking of envelopes containing the pennies collected by the scholars during the past few weeks.

—Travel on the cable foot bridge, erected across the Lehigh river at Packerton through the enterprise of Butcher George Enzian, of Franklin, has commenced. It is announced that the bridge will be dedicated Saturday evening by speeches and brass band music. To the auspicious event everybody is invited to be present and contribute to the success of the evening's entertainment.

—Arlon Cornet Band discoursed some of its sweetest music on Saturday evening to the delight of the pestiferous youngsters and the genuine enjoyment of the older folks who knoweth the power of music to soothe the savage soul. It is pleasing to observe that the Aarion organization is in a most flourishing condition.

—Lehighton has a fiend of gastronomic propensities who devoured nine lemons and eleven glasses of beer for an incipient attack of colic one day recently. He was well the following day, though we'd "warn" him not to do it again if he has any respect for the Constitutional Amendment.

—The Apron Bazar, Bubble and Strawberry Fete, for the benefit of the Presbyterian church, opens in Gabel's commodious hall, to-night and continues on Saturday evening. The benefit is a laudible one and meets the patronage of all, so let there be a crowded attendance.

—June 4th was the anniversary of the great flood which occured in 1862 and resulted in such a direful loss of life and property. Weissport was wrecked completely and much suffering followed all along the Lehigh river.

—Miss Ancanetta Andreas, of the Exchange Hotel, left on Tuesday for Buffalo, N. Y., at which place she will be united in marriage to Joseph Coburn. Numerous friends here extend hearty congratulations and best wishes.

—Trexler & Kreidler, of the Central Carriage Works received fifteen vehicles, on Wednesday to be repainted and overhauled generally and the "boys" are bumping themselves for all they are worth.

—The genial Dr. Horn at the Central Drug store has added a milk shake to his popular soda counter and now makes up a drink pleasant to the palate and equal to the nectar of the gods.

—David Ebbert, the North street liveryman, hires out the safest and best looking rigs for pleasure or business drives. Remember this when you take out your little tootsy-wootsy.

—Daniel Wieand has leased Kleppinger's large frame building on the corner of Iron street and Cherry Alley and is converting the same into a carriage finishing establishment.

—PHOTOGRAPHS of family groups, cabinets all styles, and old pictures copied and enlarged at Rishel's Gallery, near Lehigh Valley Depot, Lehighton, Pa.

—We heartily congratulate our young friend Howard Seaboldt on his appointment to so responsible an office as Notary Public.

—Christman's second grand sale of carriages and harness comes off at Biery's Hotel, Cherryville, next Monday.

—Picture rod and coving. No nice room complete without it; very low, at Luckenbach's, Mauch Chunk.

—Everything in the line of furniture at Kemerer & Swartz's. Prices always lowest and goods the best.

—The large frame building on Bank street purchased by Henry Schwartz from Daniel Wieand will be further enlarged by the addition of an L in the rear making the building 75 feet deep and 165 feet front. There will be three [illegible] floors in the rear with [illegible] on each floor. Show windows will be the "Original Cheap Cash Store" in the place of the new plain front. When the building is completed it will be quite pretentious in general appearance, and be occupied by Mr. Schwartz as a furniture establishment.

—At a meeting of the Packerton school directors on Monday evening Prof. L. M. Beidler, of town, was unanimously re-elected principal of the schools in the district for the fifth consecutive term. Miss C. B. Angle was re-appointed teacher of the primary department, in which grade she taught very successfully during the past year. The professor's re-election is a bright comment on his ability and popularity with the patrons of the schools in that place.

—Miss Mailie L., the estimable daughter of William Swank, of Summit Hill, was on Sunday united in the golden bonds of matrimony to Milton Kleckner, one of Lansford's prosperous young business men. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. S. McKinlay at the home of the brides parents and in the presence of close friends of both parties. To the young couple thus happily launched on life's sea the ADVOCATE sends best wishes for abundant prosperity.

—On Monday evening Rev. William H. Miller will deliver an address on the Constitutional Amendment question at the corner of Bank and South streets. —Preparations are in active making by Robert Klotz Commandry, K. G. E., of town, for the holding of an immense parade and picnic on the glorious Fourth. Fully a thousand men are expected to be in line from towns in and out of the county. Everybody should lend assistance to the order and help to make it a stupendous success.

—Clauss & Bro., the popular tailors, are engaged filling an order for forty suits for a Wilkesbarre German Pioneer Corps. The coats are navy blue, highly finished with silver trimmings, while the pants are of regulation order. They make a beautiful appearance and Lehighton can well feel proud of their being made here.

—The Prohibitionests are quite actively engaged in the county by means of public addresses and the printed page. Meetings in the county are being held in Millport, and on Saturday evening a grand Mass Meeting will be held in the public square of Weissport.

—Horace Heydt, Esq., having withdrawn from the firm of Heydt & Seaboldt, insurance and real estate agents, Mr. Seaboldt has associated with him Howard Seaboldt under the firm name of J. & H. Seaboldt. The firm is an energetic one and we bespeak success.

—Milton Hunsicker, of Mahoning street, has closed down his paint ore mines, located in the lower end of the county, until a law suit now pending in the New York courts between the Prince Metallic Paint Co., and the Rutherford Paint Works is settled.

Nine Million Witches Burned!

Sprenger computes that during the Christian era no fewer than nine million witches were immolated. In England, the last execution for witchcraft took place in 1716, but in Illinois as late as 1780 to 1790, several unfortunates were put to death. This is a terrible reflection on the boasted enlightenment of the age; but we must not be over-censorious, while we daily see friends going down to death, ignorance or prejudice preventing the use of remedies which might save them. Many a cold runs into consumption, while indigestion and impure blood debilitates the system, inviting fatal attacks when the use of Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery would have ensured health and happiness.

In the year 1849, she was married the Eli Koch and as result of this union seven children were born four of whom still survive a kind and affectionate mother, viz: Emma and Jeremiah, of Missouri Alvin and William.

Tears of sorrow may be wiped aways bleeding hearts may be healed, and time may level the grave of our beloved mother, but on the page of memory Indelible impressed, there will ever remain fond recollections of the one we loved so well, and the one we shall see no more. Gone but not forgotten. Dead but not unloved. The sweet voice and smiling face that used to greet us will greet us now no more for ever.

Mother, we are very lonely,
Our loss we deeply feel,
Yet He who has bereft us
Can all our sorrows heal.

We miss our loving Mother dear,
We miss her loving face,
Her vacant chair tells plainly there
Never she'll fill this place.

Oh Lord, teach us to say,
Thy will be done,
And soon we'll meet with Parent dear
And then we'll rest at home.

Brutal Attack on a Son.

When Police Weidaw arrested Charles Patterson on Tuesday night, the latter had the appearance of a cowboy on the rampage. In one hand he flourished a ten inch butcher knife while the handle of a similar weapon protended from the waistband of his trousers. He was arrested for aggravated assault with intent to kill his wife and son; the latter whom received a deep gash in the head from a sickle, the blade penetrating the skull bone and making a frightful wound, while his hands were severely cut in trying to ward off the brutal thrusts of a deadly weapon in the hands of his father who is said to have been crazed with liquor. The scene of the racas was bespattered with blood and presented a sickening appearance, while the boy, Levi with blood streaming from numerous wounds looked as if he had just came from the field of carnage. Patterson was locked up and on Wednesday morning taken before 'Squire Beltz, and from thence conveyed to the county prison at Mauch Chunk where he is likely to remain for sometime to come. Public sentiment is bitter against him, his reputation for peace in the family circle not being of the very best. His wife and son are well spoken off by neighbors as being clean, sober and industrious in habits and they have the sympathy of the community in this trouble.

THE STRICKEN CITY.

Thousands of lives Lost—Death and Ruin Stalks Everywhere.

JOHNSTOWN, June. 5.—When the large reservoir here burst on Friday death and distruction followed everywhere. In five minutes the waters rose forty-five feet; above the roar of the elements the piercing cries of men, women and children, dying in the seething, bodily waters, could be heard. The total loss is beyond the power of estimate.

When Superintendent Pitcairn telegraphed to Pittsburgh on Friday night that Johnstown was annihilated he came very close to the facts of the case, although he had not seen the ill-fated city. To say that Johnstown is a wreck is but stating the facts of the case. Nothing like it was ever seen in this country. Where long rows of dwelling houses and business blocks stood run and desolation now reign supreme. Probably 1,500 houses have been swept from the face of the earth as completely as if they had never been erected. Main street from end to end, is piled from fifteen and twenty feet high with debris, and in some instances it is as high as the roofs of the houses. This great mass of wreckage fills the street from curb to curb, and frequently has crushed the buildings in and filled the space of the remainder of the terrible calamity. There is not a man in the place who can give any reliable estimate of the number of houses that have been swept away. City Solicitor Kuehn, who should be very good authority in this matter, places the number at 1,500. From the woolen mill above the island to the bridge, a distance of probably two miles, a strip of territory nearly a half mile in width has been swept clean, not a stick of timber or one brick on top of another being left to tell the story. It is the most complete wreck that imagination could portray.

Men, women and children were plodding about the desolate waste looking in vain to locate the boundaries of their former homes. Nothing but a wide expanse of mud, ornamented here and there with heaps of drift wood, remained, however, for their contemplation. It is perfectly safe to say that every house in the city that was not located well up on the hillside was either swept completely away or wrecked so badly that rebuilding will be absolutely necessary. These losses, however, are nothing compared to the frightful sacrifice of precious human lives to be seen on every hand.

During all this solemn week Johnstown has been drenched with the tears of stricken mortals, and the air is filled with sobs and sighs that come from breaking hearts. There are scenes enacted here every hour and every minute that affect all beholders profoundly. When homes are thus torn asunder in an instant, and the loved ones hurled from the arms of loving and devoted mothers, there is an element of sadness in the tragedy that overwhelms every heart. An utterly wretched woman named Mrs. Fenn stood by a muddy pool of water trying to locate some trace of a once happy home. She was half crazed with grief, and her eyes were red and swollen. As the writer stepped to her side, she raised her pale and haggard face and remarked:

"They are all gone. Oh, God, be merciful to them. My husband and my seven dear little children have been swept down with the flood, and I am left alone. We were driven by the awful flood into the garret, but the water followed us there. Inch by inch it kept rising until our heads were crushing against the roof. It was death to remain. So I raised a window and one by one placed my darlings on some drift wood trusting to the great Creator. As I liberated the last one, my sweet little boy, he looked at me and said: 'Mamma, you always told me that the Lord would care for me, and, with a prayer on my lips for his deliverance, he passed from sight forever. The next moment the roof crushed in, and I floated outside, to be rescued fifteen hours later from the roof of a house in Kernville. If I could only find one of my darlings I could bow to the will of God, but they all are gone. I have lost everything on earth now but my life, and I will return to my old Virginia home and lay me down for my last great sleep.

A handsome woman, with hair as black as a raven's wing, walked through the depot where a dozen or more bodies were awaiting burial. Passing from one to another, she finally lifted the paper covering from the face of a woman, young, and with traces of beauty showing through the stains of muddy water, and with a cry of anguish she reeled backward to be caught by a rugged man who chanced to be passing. In a moment or so she had calmed herself sufficently to take one more look at the features of her dead. She stood gazing at the corpse as if dumb. Finally turning away with another wild burst of grief, she said: "And her beautiful hair all matted and her sweet face so bruised and stained with mud and water." The dead woman was the sister of the mourner. The body was placed in a coffin a few minutes later and sent away to its narrow house.

These incidents are but fair samples of the scenes familiar at every turn in this stricken city. The loss of life is simply dreadful.

The very latest information up to the hour of going to press place the number of dead and missing at over 8,000. The work of burying the dead is progressing as rapidly as possible, and 3000 men are employed clearing up the debris. The loss of property will run up in the millions. Great fears of a pestilence are ripe, the stench of putrifying bodies filling the air with a sickening stench that is threatening. The town will be re-built. Contributions are falling in on the sufferers and everything possible is being done to alleviate the suffering of the afflicted.

A Tribute to Carbon County Soldiers.

Hon. E. M. Mulharen, of Mauch Chunk, in concluding a highly patriotic and flowery address to the John D. Bertolette Post, 384, G. A. R., and a large assemblage of people on Decoration Day in this borough, paid the following glowing tribute to Carbon county soldiers who fought for the perpetuation of freedom's inalienable privileges:

It was in our gloomiest hour, when our rights and liberties were almost in their death throes, that the brave men and women of these Northern and Western states rose in their majesty and might to vow under God that the liberties of these States should not be suppressed. Religion called her worshippers each day to prayers and unfuried the flag upon her temples. The field of battles and hospitals saw fair women binding wounds and consoling the dying. Men of every rank and profession in life, united in one thought and for the purpose to gallantly volunteer in the ranks of their country, to go forth and fight the battles that would suppress the rebellion and preserve the Union of our forefathers. The record of the Carbon county soldier commands admiration. From the first battle at Failing Water, in West Va., in 1861, to the surrender of Lee, at Appomatox in 1865, 65, there was scarcely a battle fought but witnessed the fall of some brave Carbon county soldier. On the Peninsula when fell Miller, Connor, Sherlock, Abbott, and a host of others. At Spotsylvania in the long struggle for the capture of Richmond when fell Musselman, Fenstermacher, Mosser, Hagenrich, and Zimmerman. At Gettysburg, Antietam, Fredericksburg, and on hundreds of other battlefields where such men as Captain Webb, Whittingham, Raudenbush, McCormick, Moulthrope, McKelvey, Bohn, Gumberts, McDaniels, Graver, Longkammer, Hoffecker, Reinsmith, and Patterson bled and won imperishable laurels. I am, therefore, eminently pleased to be with you and participate in the imposing ceremonies of this day and hour. The elevated and patriotic purposes of the occasion must invest it with a pleasing and peculiar attraction to us all. What is it that brings together this gathering of people from Lehighton and vicinity? Is it not to strew the graves of the departed heroes with the new and fragrant born flowers of spring and commemorate the courage, the patriotism, the trials and virtues that invest with a peculiar charm and dignity the life-sacrifices and battlefield scenes of the soldiers? Is it not to perpetuate and keep green the names and services of the noble and true heroes who gallantly went forth, during a time of danger such as no other nation passed through? Is it not to decorate with the sweet perfumes of flowers the graves of our loved and departed heroes and also to shed a tear over the moss-covered mounds of all that remains of them? Yes, the memories of the soldiers of Lehighton and vicinity who fought the battles and helped save the Republic from the destroying hand of a deeply laid and long premeditated rebellion, his courage inspired by no hope of distinction, his life devoted to the services of his country, or his death made glorious as a sacrifice to freedom. Therefore, deeply solemn and touchingly beautiful is the ceremony which the nation performs to-day.
