NERVOUS, BILLIOUS, OR CONGESTIVE FORMS.

This Remedy is the prescription of one of the leading physicians of Paris, France and wasused by him with unparallaled success for over thirty years, and was first given to the Public as a proprietary medicine in 1878, and since that time it has found its—value almost every country on the face of the globe, and become a favorite remedy with the same of the leading physicians. Medical societies have discussed its maryelous success at their annual conventions, and after their official chemists have analyzed it and that it contained no opiates, bromides, or other harmful ingredients, quietly plead it among their standard remedies.

Ann.

"Pears to me," said Philury, pausing in her work and gesticulating with her dish cloth in her hand, "pears to me as if sothin' unusual like was a-goin' on to them Carterses. I seen the greatest lot of fixin's a-goin' in there these last two days, an' I hearn that they got Mis' Darney up from King's Holler a-sewin' up in the sparse chamber—a-sewin' all day an' on even by candlelight. Then I seen they been a-havin' them parlor blinds open, an' that certainly means sothin'.

In he ain', I won't. An' he was, an'she did."

Philury paused with a smile, and glanced inquiringly at the bride.

"An' " (Giory Ann shook her head emphatically) "an', Philury, Dorlesky was right. She didn't intend to be cast down or tred upon by any of them buillies known as men. Nor I don't, notifier. I'm a-goin' to tower at ail, so I ain't."

"Wall, ye are," interposed Philetus.

"Well, ye set and daily till I git ready open, an' that certainly means sothin'. Fil jest run across an' enquire, if you will watch them ples, I am that fleroe to know if Glory Ann be really a-goin' to marry that Philetus Antrim."

Asyling, "Please gimme some more o' them cakes, pa."

Hereupon Philetus grew very angry. Rising, he said, fleroely:

With a parting admonition concerning the pies, Philary started upon her tour "How be ye, Mis' Carter?" she inquired, and looked at that lady, who was busy making many and various sweet smell-Mrs. Carter looked up, and, waving her flour-covered arm toward a chair, said:

"Set, Philury. I be feelin' fair to mid-dlin'! How's Rhody Ann an' yerself?" "Rhody Ann ain't feelin' very smart. Her back's a-troublin' her, an' her head to onhetch them horses an' get ready for is sort o' fuddled with the achin', but milkin'; it's arter five." 'm feelin' very nice. "I'll tell 'em," said Philory, as she turned to go, "I'll tell 'em, an' it's like as not they'll come." And they did, and most of the neighborhood with them. A wedding in the community was an event of no small occurrence. It was second only in importance to a funeral, and no right minded person who was able to crawl would think of missing "Glory Ann's weddin'," for she had friends in the city, and it was expected that she would have a very stylish full of carriages, hitched to every avnil-able tree and fence post. The bride elect was proud in the pos-session of a tableful of presents, which were displayed under the kitchen win-dow, outside of which was hitched to one of the shutters a yearang calf, the gift of her father. There was a "fly catcher" of straw from a cousin in King's Hollow, and an album from an aunt in the same place, a dozen flat froms from Mr. Bangs, the storekeeper, and six cans of preserved blackberries from his wife.

Philury brought a lamp shade of green slin and a tidy from Rhody Ann. It was decorated with decaleo-manias and trimmed with purple ribbon. Philury had made this herself and was very proud of it.

Mis' Slimmer, from over the hill, being a poor widow, brought a yeast cake, which she said was "like to be useful when they kep' their own house, an' yeast, too, was better nor salt risin's." The groom gave a salt cellar, Mrs. Carter a half dozen yards of rag carpet and a copy of "Grant's Tour of the World."

The other gifts were varied in style, extending all the way from a bronge lamp, sent by the city lady, to a paper of gold hairpins, given by Mrs. Carter's bired girl. "Glory Ann's hair, bein' red, will sort o' set off them pins," she explained to "But what," Philury asked, "bo that thing a hangin' by the parior organ? It looks for all the world like a bucket
