The "Lily Drill" under the management of Miss Mame M. Miller, a Righly accomplished young lady of Philadelphin, kept the large and appreciative abdience spell-bound during every movement of its rendition. The dialogue entitled, "A Proctous Pickle," took the house by storm, Juno was the leading character; she looked so pactly. The "Broom Brigade," under the generalship of Mrs. Seribe was a prominent feature of the entertainment and wan rounds of appliance. The tactics were perfect, The odd fire-armanorel knapsacks and attractive uniforms of the girt-soldlers pleased ever eye in the andience. Captain M. W. Is a time military officer. Who ture on "The Hero, Recognized and Unrecognized," is one of the greatest oratorical efforts I have ever listened to. I consider him without a superior among all the men of the platform to day. Cordially yours, D. H. Hastinus.
