The company is composed of excellent material. The name who does very well to help make the company look quite large was conspicuously absent. Every man had something to do, and he did it so well that rounds of applause followed each part. It is a first-lass company, composed, not of handsome silk and plush costumes and fine memory and little of anything else to attract, but of alent, the kind that minstrel-loving people enjoy. The comedians are good, so are the singers and dancers, specialists and everybody connected with it.

Admission 55 and 56 cents. This brilliant company will appear in the Opera House to-night (Friday), 28th. Don't you miss it.
