a step from socialism and communism," and other similar expressions of ridicule and contempt. It is proper to designate a few of the leading public measures proposed of late years, which invariably bring frain, that they are of a socialistic tendency, and would, if adopted, surely lead to ruin and "paternal government," For instance, Senator Blair's bill which proposed its distribute the "surplus" in the United States Treasury among the several States of the Union in aid of the cause of public education in the United States severnment has practically done this very thing many times and many years ago, by giving to the several States of the several States of the several States of the several States of the United States severnment has practically done this very thing many times and many years ago, by giving to the several States of the United States severnment has practically done this very thing many times and public lands and public land serip, to aid and encourage the cause of education, appears either to have been forgotten by these anti-paternalists, or else they regard it as not in point? It is "on all fours" with it.

At the time when the United States, the few was not point? It is "on all fours" with it.

At the time when the United States Government gave such liberal and invaluable aid to the cause of public education in the States, the newspaper press did not raise the sury of "paternalism run mad."

With hardly an exception the press wisely appears either to have been forgotten by these anti-paternalists, or else they regard it as not in point. But why is it not in point? It is "on all fours" with it.

At the time when the United States Government gave such liberal and invaluable aid to the cause of public education in the States, the newspaper press did not raise the cry of "paternalism run mad." With hardly an exception the press wisely favored the necessary legislation. If the General Government has surplus funds in the Treasury, it would be interesting to have some able opponent of "paternalism" point out either an economic, a legal or a constitutional distinction between the past legislation of Congress on this subject of aiding education, and Senator Blair's prolegislation of Congress on this subject of aiding education, and Senator Blair's proposed plan for the distribution of the surplus. I mean a distinction with a difference. Again, the bill for the proposed establishment of a "Postal Telegraph Systhm," to be owned and operated by the Goyernment, brings forth the same identical lamentations in an emphasized torm, because it is plainly a stab at a big monooy, It may be observed, however, that, at the present time, there is an objection of some force to this idea of having a Govern-ment telegraph system. The "rox populi" is to a certain degree justified in declaring that if it probably would cause as much trouble and turmoil to fill the offices in the proposed telegraph system as it now does to fill the postoffices, then the Government should let it alone. The main objection is, that to make the General Government do at h things "is to involve us in a sea of trouble and end in a castiron despotism," because of the vast power which the control of the official patronage would give to unscrupulous politicians. But the remedy for this great administrative evil is easy and simule—make the tive evil is easy and simple—make the "Civil Service Laws" as firm and inflexible as the United States Army regulations, and the spoils system with its attendant train of evils, and the of ections to "Paternal Government" will be immensely seduced. The nightness of "be become a contract of the seduced. Senator Blair's idea to educate the people, tends in the right direction of a great public need, whether it be practicable or not. And until "Civil Service Reform" becomes a genuine reality, the less legisla-tion we have of the so-called paternal tendency the better, except it be in the matter of more universal education. Bu just think how many things the Govern ment now does, and attempts to do, that are of a much more "paternal" character than those aforesaid. For example, collecting private debts for private individuals, and enforcing contracts between individuals, eyen whether they be citizens or not, with all the power of the Government. It even looks after the food and health of individuals. But I will not enlarge.

Again, the loudest shricks against "paternalism" are heard when it is proposed to prevent the formation and continuation of the colossal monopolistic "trusts" of our day, by legislative enactments, so as to crush out those semi-con spiracies and souliess entities organized contrary to the unwritten law of the land, with vast aggregations of capital, controlled by the keenest and most unscrupu-lous brains, for the avowed purpose or raising and maintaining the prices of the necessaries of life, of transportation rates and traffic generally, contrary to the laws of supply and demand. It is urged that such prohibitory legislat'on is paternal, dangerous and impolitic, because it pre-sumes to interfere with private business

Do such objections constitute the sort of latesmanship that should be encouraged, as we draw near the close of the nineteenth entury, in an age of steam and electricity?

I regard government as a quasi corporation established by mankind for the purpose of attaining a civilizing and moral object.

It has been repeatedly and plainly pointed out by the profoundest thinkers, that the steadily growing and irreastible lendancy of modern civilization is towards decentralization, that is to say, towards temocracy, which means Paternal Government.

Vigorous thought and enter-prise, knowledge and invention, domina-tions of ganua and developments of governmental and social organizations, have become world-wide growths; and no the seas, it penetrates the mountains, goographical and political boundaries are no longer obtacles to the potential march of evolutionary progress in the history of civilization. The world—the wide, wide world—is now the true domain of known enough in mothers, our states, our daught and our wives to irrest them with that. WHY DENOUNCE PATERNAL GOVERNMENT?

During a recent period many of the newspapers and magazines of the United States, with some European periodicals, as well as a large class of politicians, have on cyery notable occasion, when a new idea in the French systematic mind, and the legislation, political coverage or are varied. If this were not so, that would be the best Gove ment which allowed every man to trample upon the ideal Government of democracy would be one that permitted all sorts of wrongs and injuries without a remedy. But what is the difference in principle between such a Government and one that permits individuals or corporations to hat ass and plunder the community through their control and management of such public concerns as are naturally monopolies? That the suffrage of the majority is by no means a scientific test of social good and cyll, is unfortunately too true; but, in practice, it is the only test we can apply, and the refusal to abide by it means revolution or anarchy. The purest despotism that ever existed is in its ideal historical conception as much based upon that will sands to receive the reward of her years of singers who, having a fine voice and an entering and entering at the decomplished the most difficult tasks without tasks without any apparent effort; and entering at any apparent effort; and entering at any apparent effort; and entering at any apparent effort; and entering and, and, if I mistake not, one of the vest-faculty, having hardly a friend in its affectionately called, was not blessed with what the world calls beauty, but she lactomatically and, and, if I mistake not, one of the vest-faculty, having hardly a friend in its affectionately called, was not blessed with what the world calls beauty, but she lactomatically and, and, if I mistake not, one of the vest-faculty, having hardly a friend in its affectionately called, was not blessed with what the world calls beauty, but she lactomatically and, and, if I mistake not, one of the vest-faculty, having hardly a friend in its affectionately called, was not blessed with what the world calls beauty, but she lactomatically and, and, if I mistake not, one of the vest-faculty and, and, if I mistake not, one of the vest-faculty and, and, if I mistake not, one of the vest-faculty and, and, if I mistake not, one of the vest-faculty and, and, if I mistake not, one of the vest-faculty and, and, if I mistake not, one of the vest-faculty and, and, if I mistake not, one of the vest-faculty and, and, if I mistake not, one of the vest-faculty and, and, if I mistake not, one of the vest-faculty and, and, if I mistake not, one of the vest-facult sands to receive the reward of her years of singers who, having a fine voice and an patient toll and study, there was no heartler agreeable presence, trayeled on his shape United States, although it may not at first blush seem so. Still, there is a distinct movement in favor of national control of all questions of policy which manifestly demand uniformity of treatment and power of administration such as cannot be realized by separate, unconcerted action of the States; and it seems probably to many that, States; and it seems probably to many that, whether by Constitutions! ROOFING PLATES.

WE not only give the purchaser the best roofing plates, but we protect him: FIRST—By guaranteeing every box.

SECOND—By stamping each sheet with the brand and thickness.

THIRD—By excluding wasters or defec-FOURTH—By branding the net weight of he 112 sheets on each box, to sathy the cus-omer (in this age of light weight plates) that he is obtaining Full Weight.

For the benefit of these wanting the very best roofing plates, we assert, and are pre-pared to prove, that there are no office orangs of roofing tin offered in the market o-day, by any firm under the four different parameters given above by this house, and we challenge a public contradiction of this tatement.
