BROADBRIM'S N. Y. LETTER

The season of mortification and sorrow is past, and Easter came down upon us bright and beautiful like a benediction. No lovelier Easter morning has been seen for years, and the churches of all denominations were made richer by the blessing. The air was vibrant with the Hosana and Gloria in Excelsis Deo; Jew and Gentile alike joined in the anthem of praise. The grand chorus that rang out from every Christian Church, "Our Christ is risen," swept heavenward with the Jewish song of deliverance, "Behold how mighty is Israel's God who hath delivered his children out of the hand of the Egyptian spoiler." The last day preceeding the feast of the Passover is held most sacred by every religious Hebrew, and the observance of the sacred feasts and fasts among the people of Israel is more reverently observed as the years go by. A Jew to-day, earns no respect in any community by being half a Christian, And in New York and Brooklyn his surest passport to respectability and consideration is found in the faithful observance of his own religious duties.

It goes without saying that in the Catholic and Episcopal Churches Easter is one of the grandest holidays of the year, hardly excepting Christmas. Flowers and music, with bright songs of praise and jubilee, crown it with especial joy and blessing. It is a symbol of hope and everlasting promise, for Christ has risen from the dead, and is the mediator of man with the Father forevermore. There was a time when your staunch old Presbyterian would have perished at the stake rather than have indulged in any of the idolatrous mummery of the Papists and their imitators; but that is all past now, dead, as John Knox himself. Every Presbyterian Church last Sunday, from Harlem Bridge to East New York in Brooklyn, was more like a flower garden than an old time orthodox meeting house, and paid choirs at a salary of eight or ten thousand dollars a year have superseded the sweet singers of fifty years ago who sang for nothing and found themselves, and made the old rafters ring with Coronation and Greenland's Icy Mountains. Oh, the flowers! fresh and beautiful; flowers, flowers, everywhere; roses, lillies, carnations, tulips, hyacinths, painted in gorgeous hues, as God only can paint these beautiful children of light. The growth of our boy choirs in the Catholic and Episcopal Churches has added immeasurably to the power and beauty of our sacred music. Who that has heard the Easter service at St. Peter's at Rome can ever forget while life remains the majestic swell of that mighty chorus or ever expect to hear its equal this side of the Gates of Pearl?

St. Patrick's Cathedral on the Fifth Avenue is beyond all question the finest Christian temple in the United States. Its congregation is rich and powerful. It is the spiritual home of the archbishop, and its choir is one of the finest in the city. St. Thomas's Episcopal Church (the one where they have no room for room sinners) is famous for its boy choir, in which are two of the most phenomenal voices in America. Trinity, Grace, and many others fairly outdid themselves. It was a gay time for our Methodist brethren. The New York and East New York conference have been sitting here and in Brooklyn all the week, "and the woods was just full of 'em"—Methodists, everywhere. The peace that passeth understanding was supposed to reign within its borders; but it didn't. It is true they did not have to wrestle with the thirty-nine articles, or the Apostles' creed. The Westminister Confession did not worry them a bit, and yet there was trouble in Zion's camp, though the cloud at first was no bigger than a man's hand. The laity are struggling for recognition, and they are bound to have it. Some of the old shell backs, who are still wandering about the desert in search of the Promised Land, attempted to block the way, and one prominent minister declared that if the time had come in the Methodist Church when a minister could have no more voice in church government than a layman, then he was quite ready to turn Presbyterian or Congregationalist, no matter which,

In the meantime, a new class of ministers is coming up—young, strong, bright, brainy men, and most of them are with the people and against the exclusive rule of the old time priest.

The other afternoon I dropped into the Gabalda sale of pictures and bric-a-brac at the American Art Galleries, and it was an hour most pleasantly and profitably spent. We are continually railing against the extravagance of the present age, but a glance at this admirable collection would convince the most sceptical that our present style of living is economy itself alongside of the extravagance of hundred or two hundred years ago, and even away beyond that. Here were articles of the date of the 14 th and 15th century of a cost that no family of the present day would think of undertaking. Common clothes presses covered with as costly as a ladies workbox. Tablets inlaid with ivory and all sorts of precious wood, worth a moderate fortune. Missals illuminated by the monks, a single volume of which cost labor of a life. Against the wall was an elegant Andrew Ferrara, with which the knightly owner cloye his was through many an opposing host. Here, too was a magnificent carved ivory, casket, the same that Ferdinand and Isabella presented to Christopher Columbuse after he was brought back from Hispanola in chains. Hundreds were there to bid eagerlo secure these precious relics of the past. The sale wich lasted three days, realized many thousands of dollars, and yet, save as ornaments or objects of personal gratification, they were utterly useless. The cry of suffering and want is heard all over the land, and the question arises, are we poor? Twenty-five hundred dollars was paid for a dog at the Dog Show, and a hundred and twelve thousand dollars was recently paid for a little picture. It is said that Wannamacker gave seventy thousand dollars for Munkacy "Christ before Pilate," and Mr. Walters, of Baltimore, gave eighteen thousand five hundred dollars for a little insignificant piece of bric-a brac known as the "Peach Blow Vase A little over a week ago Governor Stanford received nearly two hundred and forty thousand dollars for a small string of horses, and just before that Cornelius Vanderbilt paid a hundred thousand dollars for Turners Picture of the "Grand Canal. Are we poor, and if so, whence come these enormous sums of money? On Wednesday last twenty thousand dollars in cash was taken in at the Metropolitan Oprea House, a goodly portion of wich Patti will carry to her castle in Wales. Are we poor, and if so, why so? Speaking of Governor Stanfords horses what a band they were; members of the Royal Family all Their fathers were kings and their mothers were queens back to remotoft generation. No taint of plebeian blood crossed that royal stock, and no bar sinister clouded that Imperial succession. Purchasers need no guarantee when they saw the Stanford colors. They knew the stock was good and straight as old Governor himself, and no man who ever doubted his word. His great sale proved this—that honesty in horse dealing is just as good as honesty in anything else. Bonner thought so when he paid fifty thousand dollars for Sunol, but what of it? all Royalty is costly, If Huntington could pay half million for a German Count, one of Stanford's equine kings is cheap at a hundred thousand.

I am, yours truly,
BROADBRIM.
