And at every fresh surprise the leaders nearest the cowboy edged a little away from him and shoved the inside eattle in the mme direction. So, little by little, the man was forcing the head of the mad percession farther and further from the At all druggist straight line of march.

All at once Polly understood the whole thing. She had heard her father and his men talk about "winding up" a stampeding herd. The thing to do was to push the leaders gradually around in a circle. The others would follow, and as the strole graw amalier and smaller the tront of the column would overtake the rear, and finally the cattle would be so helpleasly wound up that they would stop in sheer bewildersment. This was what she was helping Dick Mayhew to do. Suddenly her horse swerved a little what she was helping Diok Mayhew to do.
