The horse could not feel the rush of visitors in town last Sunday. It should be a pointer to the Fourth.

It was 105 degrees in the sun on Monday—hotter than at any time this year.

Work is being pushed on Miller's planing mill—the foundation walls being almost up.

John Brisco, hails from somewhere in the upper end. One day last week he started to "do up" Frank Hallon with the sharp end of an axe. He was pulled, and now languishes in hotel de Levant on Broad way. The next term of court will attend to him.

The Lehigh Valley Railroad Company is erecting signals to warn brakemen that they are approaching an overhead bridge. The signal is a pine rod that extends right across the track some twenty feet above the ground. Its one end is fastened with a spring to a post on the side of the track. A brakeman on the top of a freight car will hit the rod when it moves gently to one side and swings back into place. One of these rods has been placed at Coalport to warn brakemen of the deadly pocket bridges at that place.

Lehigh Council, No. 101, Jr. O. U. A. M., elected the following new officers for the ensuing six months term: Jr. Past C.—Frank Hefflinger. Councilor—G. W. Northrup. Vice Councilor—G. D. Arner. The Lively Moth. An English naturalist says that the moth was known 800 years B. C. and that Cleopatra, after losing $10,000 worth of fine clothes by him in one year, paid an arduous $2,000 to make her a chest of lead to keep her other store clothes from being chewed up.—Detroit Free Press.

The "Elephant Man." He was afflicted with two terrible deformities—overgrowth of certain bones and a severe skin disease of a disgusting nature. Two enormous bony outgrowths developed on his forehead, and the bones of the upper jaw, right arm and both feet were of great size. The skin disease consisted of wart like masses, quite unattractive on some parts, but forming large excrescences on the back of the head and loins. The skin formed large loose flaps on the right side of the chest and the lower part of the back. The eyelids, ears, left arm and other parts contained festering sores. The high masses of bone on the forehead, with the prominent nose and lip, which hung downwards, owing to overgrowth of the skin, gave an elephantine appearance to the features. The head, during the last three or four years, grew so heavy that at length the man had great difficulty in holding it up. He slept in a crouching position, with his hands clasped over his legs and his head on his knees. There can be no doubt that the weight of the head killed him, as stated at the inquest. The post mortem was a most interesting and interesting.—British Medical Journal.

A Sport Loving People. "I suppose you have frequently heard that Australia is the greatest country in the world for athletic sports," said Ned Hanlan, the oarsman, while talking about the world's championship boat race at Sydney. "But the facts have not been exaggerated. It is wonderful how the people turn out to any kind of sport—sculling, horse races, wrestling matches or anything else. Why, I saw as many as 20,000 people at a little sprinting match once. Then, what do you think of 70,000 going to the horse races? For that was the attendance in horse racing at the Melbourne cup was won. The Derby in England isn't a comparison so far as the crowd is concerned. The crowds at the best races are also phenomenal. The people in Australia go crazy over all sorts of sports."—Louisville Post.

Unique Barometer. An old Belfast sea captain is credited with devising a unique barometer. It consists of a thin strip of white pine with a number of cross pieces upon it. The strip is hung on the side of the building, and when damp weather is approaching the barometer bulges out in the center, while in the dry weather the center sinks in and the ends come out.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

Truth is Mighty. A grocer in a suburb of Philadelphia called Jackowaxton, or Shackmaxton, or some such thing, hung a sign on his safe reading: "No money in here." And yet two burglars worked for ten hours to get it open and discover that it was only an empty void. A man who won't believe in his fellow man must expect to work for low wages.—Detroit Free Press.

A Hero. Bridget (jocosely)—An' ded yee see me young man's darlin' facin' the paper this mornin'?

Mistress—Is it possible! What has he been doing, something good, I hope.

Bridget—Yes, indeed. He's been gettin' cured by his cyster an' he tells about it as natural as loafe.—Pittsburg Bulletin.
