Gaming for a Man's Life. Before the war a man was on trial in auderdale county for murder. The circumstantial evidence against the man was very strong, and when the jury re-tired and took a ballot the result was six for conviction and six for acquittal. It remained this way for two days and nights, neither side showing any disposition to change their minds. At last one of the jury, named Silvertooth, proposed s game of seven up between the opposing sides, one man to be selected from each side, and whoever won the losing side was to stand by the result.

This was agreed to, and Silvertooth who was in favor of acquitting the prisoner, and another jurgr, who was strongly in favor of conviction, commenced the game. It was a hotly contested game, and each juror had scored six points when it came Silvertooth's time to deal. He shuffled the cards carefully and dealt off the right number to each and then turned a jack, which made him win the game and which saved the prisoner's The six who were for conviction voted with the other six for acquittal and the prisoner was discharged from custody.-Atlanta Constitution.

He was turned into a Nemests after the Pinkertons threw that bomb through the window of the Samuela restdence and blew off the arm of Jesse's mother. Ever after that occurrence both Frank and Jesse declared war to the knife on the Pinkerton men. The killing of Jesse James by Bob Ford was the cowardly act of a treacherous, un grateful fiend. Bob wasn't 'eating reg ular' when Jesse took him to his home gave him shelter and food and treated him well. One day, when Jesse was dusting off a picture and had his back, turned, Bob shot him from behind. Of course you know that but very few people ever learned what picture Jesse was usting off when he got his death wound. It was the large picture of his dear old, white haired mother, whom he loved dearly.

"In one robbery at Blue Cut, when the James gang went through a train, Jesse led the way and relieved the pas-sengers of their valuables. He came to woman in black, who was sobbing bitterly. Jesse stopped and inquired the cause of her sorrow. As she handed him $70 in greenbacks she cried out convulsively: 'It's all I have in the world. My husband's corpse is in the baggage car, Tears came to the eye of the train robber. Going into his pocket he re-turned the $70 and added two crisp $100 bills to it, which he forced the widow to accept. He never would rob a cripple or an old gray haired woman, either. He once took an overcoat off his own back in the streets of Liberty, Mo., and gave it to a poor, shivering old man that had been turned out into the cold by an ungrateful son-in-law. Secretary Seward's Opinion. I heard a story of William H. Seward the other day which I think is a new one. I am not certain, but I am impressed with a conviction that it comes from Miss Olive Risley Seward, an adopted daughter of the late Secretary Seward, whose Bohemian literary salon is one of the most charming places to which one can have the entree at the national capital. It was at the time when there was great agitation of the removal of the capital, and all Washington was alarmed One of the scared ones said to Secretary Seward, "Mr. Seward, do you think the capital will be removed from Washing-ton?" "Yes, I think it will," was the reply. "But where—to Chicago?" "No. "What? Not to St. Louis? Well, where then?" "To the City of Mexico. That will probably be the center of population of the United States one of the days,"—Pittsburg Dispatch.
