LIONS IN HARNESS.

The Long Training Needed by the Desert Ring Before He'll Stave.
The very spirited (Bustration of three lions driven abreast by a man standing erect in a Roman chariot is familiar to most residents in London. It portrays, without the usual absurd exaggeration of mural art, an entertainment which is iven daily at the French exhibition at Earl's court. In the center of the large circular space which has been used during the last few years for the display of the In-dians of the Wild West, the sports of the Roman amphitheatre, etc., is erected a smaller circle, securely surrounded with iron bars, having at the back an inclosed building containing dens. The "open sesame" of my host passed us into the private recesses of this prison house, in which I found four young lions, the old-who had just been added to the collection. The education of this one was just ommencing, and he still retained the that any approach to familiarity was met by a speel which displayed the unshed milk teeth of the owner, looking as sharp and needlelike as those of a puppy.

The training of these vonng lions rarely occupies less space of time than welve months, and is chiefly acco plished by kindness. Mr. Darling, their trainer, informed me that he regarded erce as not being desirable, as it excited the animals to rebellion and was not conducive to obedience, whereas, trained nder the system adopted, each animal knows its name and answers to it. So successful are the methods employed by Mr. Darling that he has never been bitten by the animals during the time he has had them in hand. In addition to the lions the collection includes two huge Bavarian boarhounds, which take a very prominent part in the performance. After this introduction to the performrs I took my seat with the audience to witness the exhibition. Mr. Darling and is assistant entered the arena with the ons and one of the dogs; the former, at the word of command, leaped up upon pedestals and arranged themselves in oyramidal groups. While in this position Mr. Darling placed the ends of two earfs in the mouths of the lions, formng festoons, over and under which one stepped upon a plank forming a seesaw. the dog leaping on to the center and

This class of bank, cases gives to the pircuit judges of the inited States, by transferring to them he management and operation of wast railway properties, a degree of responsi odlity and patronage never originally in-ended to be placed in their power, The opportunities thus presented to a court of justice for the exercise of pat-ronage, the reward of friends, the selection of counsel for receivers, the appointment of masters, and the manipuation and adjustment of large pecuniar interests, are in themselves very much to be deprecated. While no scandals of any magnitude have as yet arisen from this power of appointment and the pat rousge and pecuniary expenditure inci-dent thereto, it is, after all said and lone, a modern, and indeed a much more formidable, form of judicial property administration than that which corrupted the court of chancery in England in the exercise of its jurisdiction over the estates of wards in chancery.

In the western and southwestern dis ricts of our circuit courts of the United States properties larger in extent and pecuniary value than any that passed der the control of the English courts of chancery between 1730 and 1820 in the administration of the estates of wards have thus passed under the con trol of the individual circuit judges of the United States.-Simon Sterne in
