The Nose.

The nose must be considered the unfortunate member of the countenance It is bound to grow in any shape which pleases a capricious fate, subject to no rule or possibility of restriction. Ita ninence has often to be deplored, especially when the contour is some thing that one wishes to have hidden; for there it stands, in the centre of the face, more prominent than a light-house off a rocky coast, the first to catch the eye of a friend, the last to arrest the attention of a casual acquaintance. Unlike some of its fellow-members, it has no expression of its own, worth speaking of; and what it has is of the reverse order. The plain mouth may break into a smile to touch the coldes heart with a gleam of sympathetic joy; the dullest eye may light up with a gleam of radiance wholly unlooked for; but any such attempt on the part of this awkward attachment only ends in distortion. The "expression" of the nose is best in its natural state and its nor mal condition. Giving Shape to Feet. Every one, especially children, should wear properly-fitting shoes, no matter how common their material. They should be neither too large nor too small, and should have low, flat heels that must be promptly "righted" as soon as they begin to wear to one side. If the toes of the foot show a tendency to overlap they should be rubbed with the hands once or twice each day; and if this care be given when the curving commences it will, as a rule, prove sufficent to correct any irregularities of this nature. If a nail is wayward in its growth, trim it only lightly at the ailing corner, but fully at the opposite corner. If both corners grow too deeply into the Besh, clip them carefully and lightly, and then scrape the centre of nail from the tip to near the root until it is thin and flexible. This process seldom fails sorrect refractory nalls-provided, of course, they are not neglected too long.

It Was Taxes.

A young woman with an unusually pretty face, a stylish dress and no escort boarded a Hudson River train recently. The only unoccupied seat in the car was a short one near the door and she sat down in it, pulled a copy of "Cmaar's Column" from her bag and began to

Only two very narrow-minded persons er a desperately spoony couple could have occupied the seat comfortably, but a young man with a "Guesie" hat and a braided ring on his searf thought be saw and, pointing to the foot of the vacant seat beside the young woman, inquired in his most winning tone : " Is this seat engaged !"

The young woman read her book without reply. "Is this seat taken?" persisted the
