· Catarrh·

IS a blood disease. Until the poison is a expelled from the system, there can be no cure for this loatisome and dangerous malady. Therefore, the only effective treatment is a thorough course of Ayer's Sarsaparilla — the best of all blood purifiers. The sooner you begin the better; delay is dangerous.

"I was troubled with catarrh for over two years. I tried various remedies, and was treated by a number of physicians, but received no benefit until I begin to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. A few bottles of this medicine cured me of this troublesome complaint and completely restored my health."—Jesse M. Boggs, Holman's Mills, N. C.

Boggs, Holman's Mills, N. C.

7 "When Ayer's Sarsaparilla was recommended to me for catarrh. I was inclined to doubt its efficacy. Having tried so many remedies, with little benefit, I had no faith that anything would cure me. I became emaciated from loss of appetite and impaired digestion. I had nearly lost the sense of small, and my system was hadly dersinged. I was about discouraged, when a friend arged me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and referred me to persons whom it had cured of catarrh. After taking half a dozen bottles of this medicine, I am convinced that the only aire way of treating this obstinate disease is through the blood."

REST IN THE WORLD. a beautiful denvise THE HAUNTED HOUSE.

In the fall of 1866 I was living in Philadelphia, occupying bachelor's quarters, but congratulating myself quarters, but congratulating myself upon the fact that my boarding-house existence would soon be changed into living in a home. The partner of my joys, who was to occupy that home with me, was a young lady born in the city of Penn, whom it is not necessary to describe, as she is now looking over my shoulder at the lines I am Writing.

We were to be married the day after Christmas, and the wedding was to be a double one, for my old friend, Fred Doolittle, was to marry the sister of my Ella.

modest home with a couple of acres of ground attached, and not more than an hour's ride by cars from the cisy. Every day for several weeks I boked for such a place. I read the closely-printed columns of the Ledger under the head of "Real Estate for Sale," but saw acthing I thought would suit us, until one Friday I read a glowing description of the very place we wanted—only the house was larger than necessary—and I was greatly surted on, and a creak which sturied.

then walked three squares to Arch, and ringing the bell at the proper number, was shown into a hands mely-furnished drawing-room, where the owner of the house soon entered. When I stated my business, he smiled as the clerk had done, and asked: "Do you think you would like the house?"

had calculated on being at the haunted house at 7 o'clock, but on account of a delay, caused by a derailed freight train, it was two hours past that time when I reached the station. I had but a quarter of a mile to walk, and, after being directed by the station-master, who looked suspiciously at the cudgel, I started off at a brisk pace, and in less than four minutes came to a house which stood among the trees three rods from the road. came to a house which stood among the trees three rods from the read. As I saw a light in one of the windows, I thought it could not be the house I wanted, and walked to the adjoining dwelling, a few hundred feet farther on, which was perfectly dark. There was nothing suspicious-looking about the place, and I at once went to the back door and inserted the key, which did not appear to fit very well. While I was at work with the key in see hand and the knob in the other, an upper window, immediately over my head, was opened and a white figure appeared. I siepped back, and drawing a revolver, said: "You needn't play ghost with me. Come down here or I will fire."

The answer was a scream, un-

The answer was a scream, uneearthly, but not ghostly, sounding very much as if it came from the throat of a mortal woman. The scream was followed by the opening of two other windows, and two more white figures appeared. I thought it was a very good night for ghosts; when it occurred to me that I might have made a mistake particularly when one of the figures levelled a gun over the window-sill and asked;

"What do you want?"

What do you want?"

What do you want?"

That's what I want to know," said fred.

When I told him about my coming to the house he burns out laughing and said: "It is too funny I saw the adventisement, went to get the key and was told the house was baunted. Like you I didn't believe it, so out I came to lavestigate the spirits."

"No, it is not," answered the bolder

When we reached the lower hall we plainly saw the front door close and heard a key turn in the lock. Fred opened it again with his key and we stapped out and listened. We heard voices around the corner of the porch, not twenty feet away, and I at once recognized them as belenging to the men who talked to me from the window of the mext house. The one who had aimed the gun said: "John I don't believe he will but the house."

We thought the premises were rid of ghosts, and concluded to let the men go, which they were very glad to do. The house was not haunted after that night.
