It is natu-rally enough not often that one has to chronicle any departure from recog-nized custom in this regard; but such departures do from time to time is do come to church and requested to be married with the church kay, as the parochial suthorities had not fur-nished them with a ring." The clerk, it is said, not unasturally, felt "some delicacy" about this, and finally found another way out of the difficulty. He fetched an old curtain ring from his own house and with this extraordinary article the loving couple were duly united in the bonds of holy matri-mony. But, though this particular clerk saw fit to hesitate, the church key has been employed, and that more than once, in place of the ring during the last hundred years. Even the Duke of Hamilton "was married at May Fair with a bed-curtain ring." A few evenings ago, riding up town Madison avenue car.
