METHS OF THE SEA'S SALTNESS. Some Very Interesting and Anotest Beilefa There are hundrads of quaer myths and traditions given to account for the fact that the sea is salt. The Arabs say that when the first pai sinned they were living in a beautifu-garden on a tract of land joined to a mainland by a narrow neck or isthmus. When it became known to the Holy One that His prople had sinned Ho went to the garden for the purpose of driving them out and across the narrow neck of land into the patch of thorn and bran-bles on the other alds. Anticipating what would be the consequence of their heinous crime, they had prepared to leave their beautiful garden and hau actually gone so for as to send the chiliran and the goats across into the When the Holy One appeared on th logua scens the first pair started to run, but the woman looked back. For this the man cursed her, and for such a crim was almost immediately turned into a huge block of salt. (Compare with Genesis 19:26.) The woman, more for-giving than her hustand, stooped to pick up the shapeless mass of salt, when immediately the narrow neck of land began to crack and break. As she touched what had once been her companion she, too, was turned to sait just us the neck of hand sank and the waterrushed through.

From that day to this, the Arabs say all the waters of the ocean have rushed through that narrow channel at least once a year, cons antly wearing away the salt of what was once our first par-ents, yet the bulk of the two salty ob jects is not diminished in the least. The Pythag reans believed that the sea was made salty by the tears of Kro nos, father of Zeun. The Helzew ex-planation is somewhat similar, though more poetic. They believed that the saltness was caused by the tears of fallen

Logan and fiam Ward.

"General Legan used to tell an in-teresting anecdote about Sam Ward, said an old timer the other evening to a New Haven Register man. "Ward. y u know, always ande it a habit in giving one of his entertainments to have a specialty. This specialty was always something decidedly unique. It was either a wonderful haunch of venison, a remarkable roat of beef, an exquisitely carved piece of frozen cream, or some rare old wine. Ward was a spiendid story teller, and his manner, as everybody who knew him knows, was simply charming. "Well, one evening General Logan was present at one of Ward's suppers. After the wine was produced Ward went to the side loard and 1 roduced a queer look-field for the state of light Ha ing fiask containing a pint of liquid. He placed the glass before him and called the attention of the company to its pe-guliar shape and color. He then recited a most romantic tale. The flask and whisky were over 200 years old. They were the property of a French king, who presented the flask filled with the royal whisky to a personal friend, who had carefully treasured it and handed it lown f on generation to generat til Mr. Ward in some strangely fortun-nte vay had secured posesion of it. Ward was at least 10 minutes telling his story, and when he concluded everybody But the dream after all is not a dream. the problem is solved, and its solution is so simple and satisfactory that the onder is it was not made clear befo e some weeks since the heads of five Utics, N. As they drank it down lips were smacked approca-tively, heads were nodded significantly, and every one declared is the finest by ments for a trial of cooperative house-sceping in so far as the dinin room and far he had ever drank. "Now, General Logan was just a little skeptical as to Ward's story. It was alkitchen were concerned. The gentle-men interested are all business men in moderate circumstances, who had come to the conclusion that be ter service at together too romantic to go down with the practical general, and he made it a tens cost could be obtained in this way than by the usual individual housekeep-ing method. Choosing a president, point the very next day to make some inquiries. The answers to the first in-dicated that he was on the right track, secretary, and a treasury and a "bard of governors," the gentlemen set theni-elves to work. The first thing to be ione was to draft a compact by which and he was referred to a neight oring drug store where Ward frequently bought some liquor. He dropped into the drug store and engaged in conversa-tion with the clerk, whom he knew, and all were bound to give the plan a trial of three months. All are so well satis-fied that there will be no changes at the end of that time, three weeks hence. In tion with the clerk, whom he knew, and finally asked: 'By the way, did Sam Ward get any whicky here yesterday? "Oh, yes,' replied the droggist. 'Ward got a pint of the best whicky we have. He brought around a queer looking finak, which he had un fill up.'" the original number 20 persons were in-cluded, which number has been sug-mented to nearly 50 as many as can be ecommodated in the present quarters. Physically it may be distinguished rom beef or mutton by its appearance. t is coarser in the grain than beef. In this respect it resembles buil beef more han any other. It is darker in color and looks more moist than best. It has a peculiar smell and a peculiar sweet considered to be half way between the flavors of beef and game: it is some-timg like the flavor of hare. One reason why horse flesh is as a rule larker in color than beef is that horses which are polenzed, or which have died from fujury, disease, or old age, are not properly bled and dressed by the slaughterer. It is, however, by its fat that horse fish is most easily distinguished. The fat of horse fish is not generally uixed with the lean. It is yellow in color. It looks more ol-t than the fat of loef. It soon melts and soon becomes rancid. Cousquently, unless a rapid sale is effected or the fat removed, an advanced price must be charged in order to secure the butcher from loss of unsold meat. Lastly, horse firsh, can be distinguished from beef by it chemical clust cteristics, and it is in this way that i may be recognized when mixed with other subs ances. Who can tell, except the chemist, what are the component ar a of a satisage, polony, or saveloy? Or who can tell by taste what these parts are?
