HOW JOSH KEPT HOUSE.

Mr. Phlatkins, peering into the chum, where the cream was in a state of strange, violent agitation. Reaching in with his hand to see what might be the cause of the old phenomenon, his flesh came in contact with an agitator. After fishing a few moments he drew forth the strangest looking specimen of butter ever churned. This roll of butter said in a queer, gurgling voice, "Me-yow!" It was Mr. T. Cat. In disguise so complete that his own mother could never have recognized him. Josh old T. Cat. He loved cream, but this time he had more than he could handle. Josh placed him outside the kitchen window, when he began a process of cleaning which to this day he has never ended.

A DEMI WOMAN SPEAKS.

After Three Years of Silence a Fit of Sugar Fits Back Her Voice.

The vegetable cook at Green's Hotel, whose name is Mrs. Murphy, has been dumb for three years, but recently being aroused to a fit of intense anger by the impudence of a colored waiter named Joe Todd, she suddenly recovered her speech.

THE GIRL THAT I DIDN'T GET.

Yes, this is her picture, standing there. The one with the round face. And the laughing mouth, and the loose about hair. And the brooch at her throat and the lace. I know it is foolish to keep it there so. To cherish the old regret. But I should have said to her go. The girl that I didn't get.

HOW TO COLLECT BAD BILLS.

A Chicago Tailor Who Was Bound Not to Be Shook Out.

A Chicago tailor has devised a new way to collect old debts. A customer, who is employed in his father's office as the Board of Trade, has owed a bill of $40 for several months. Statements of the indebtedness and demands for payment have been made once or twice a week for some time with no effect, and the young man's father and mother have been appealed to in vain. It was useless to sue, for the debtor isn't worth a dollar. The case looked hopeless.

Best Fertilizer for Cabbage Hills.

Mr. J. J. H. Gregory, the well known trucker and seedman, gives his experience as follows to the American Cultivator as to the following mixture for starting cabbage: "Either ash or bone separately, or phosphates, he says, such as are to be found in the market, make excellent starters for cabbage, when well mixed in the hills. I have sometimes put these in the hills before planting. At other times, when I had reason to fear that they would not be sufficiently well mixed with the soil to prevent killing the young plants, I have had them scattered around the plants just before hoeing them, taking care to cover the fertilizer with the earth drawn around the plants."

Men and Women.

We have to fall back at last for the standard of good manners and good morals not upon the law, but upon the many. The masses of the people are unquestionably more critical as to morality than any exclusive circle; and as to the masses of good manners, they are to be found more securely among the many than among the few. We have the high authority of Bronson Howard for saying that a Bowers audience is far quicker than a fashionable New York audience in detecting a really immoral man in a play. More than one English nobleman has been forgiven in American drawing rooms for conduct which would have caused him, if known, to be summarily ejected from a Rocky Mountain play. Where they are—so in parts of penetration, selects a rough Californian as the man who patrols the sleeping car to be the self appointed protector of the ladies. An unprotected girl may travel by rail from the Atlantic to the Pacific and meet with less of real rudeness and unkindness than she might encounter in a single evening, even from her own sex, at some very exclusive ball. The little social circles have their value; they furnish a part of the education and experience in social life. When they happen to be under the leadership of a really cultivated and high minded woman—like the late Mrs. John Jacob Astor, for instance—they afford not merely a school of deportment, but of the world. Where they are—as is quite as likely—under a very different style of leadership, the results correspond. "He despises me," said Ben Jonson, "because I live in an alley. Tell him his soul lives in an alley." In all parts of the world there are women whose forms are covered with diamonds, but who still carry the habits of the alley in their souls. In the long run, the safety of our national morals and manners does not lie in any of the little social circles, but in the average sense and breeding of the vast public from which those circles are constantly recruited.—T. W. Higginson, in Harper's Bazar.

Distance Is Nothing Nowadays.

Near Bombay recently two British ships were within a half mile of each other. One had one end of the broken Bombay cable; the other had the other end. One wished to communicate with the other. To send a boat would have taken too much time, so word was sent by wire, 4,000 miles around!

When I die,

"When I die," said a married man, "I want to go where there is no snow to shovel." His wife said she presumed he would.

Hold It to the Right.

The man who tells you confidentially just what will cure his ailment is probably a charlatan. He is sure to tell you that his medicine is the best. He is sure to tell you that his medicine is the best. He is sure to tell you that his medicine is the best. He is sure to tell you that his medicine is the best.

Heart Disease is usually supposed to be incurable.

but when properly treated a large proportion of cases can be cured. Thus Mrs. Elmina Hatch, of 2314th St., Ind., and Mrs. Mary L. Baker, of 2100, Mich., were cured after suffering 20 years. S. C. Linburger, druggist at San Jose, Ill., says that Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, which cured the former, "worked wonders for his wife." Levi Logan of Buchanan, Mich., who had heart disease for 30 years, says two bottles made him "feel like a new man." Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure is sold and prepared by Dr. J. C. Williams, Lehighton and Bly, Wiscasset.

A man of influence.

The hotel clerk. "We hate to see girls throw kisses. The average girl is such a thundering loud shot. Blows are not always exchanged when you strike an acquaintance. Armor plates are provided the best on which to see a cannon ball. By the time a man realizes that he is a fool it is usually too late to realize on his realization.

Spots on Venus.

A bulletin of the Belgian Royal Academy of Sciences states that the dark spots that have been noticed by observers on Venus are of a permanent character. Observations have been made of successive positions of this planet, and the facts demonstrate that after an interval of three years the spots were fixed once to be recognized, and that the markings are not accidental, but are probably due to some configuration of the face, the atmosphere of the planet. The atmosphere is so dense on Venus that the spectrum of the recent observations were such as to indicate that.
