Mr. Plankinton came to Milwaukee in 1844 at the age of 24 years, and the characteristics which made him famous as a usiness man and a citizen were brought into action within a fortnight after his urrival. A native of Delaware, he removed with his parents to Pittsburg at the age of of 13, received a scanty edu-cation, and in 1844 came to the city of bricks before the utility of the mud had been discovered. When he reached the village, a practical young butcher, he found that the friend with whom he was to have formed a copartnership had made better arrangements with another, and made the excuse that young Plankinton's capital was inadequate to the enterprise designed. Angry at the betrayal of con-fidence, a business failing which he nover forgave in any one during his long career afterward, he resolved to start in opposition. Possessing $425, he rented a use to shelter his wife and child at $8 per month, bought a cow for $9 and turned her out to pasture and fatten on the open wild land where his palatial house now stands on Grand avenue, while he rented land and proceeded to erect a lantcher shop, which cost him $108. Fourteen days after his arrival he was remiling his meats.

came the leading butcher of the town and his business the first year averaged nearly $1,000 per month. His increasing business demanded new quarters, and he moved, but it was a peculiarity of his life to retain the title to all realty which he had once occupied, and at the time of ins death the land upon which he first tound a home in Milwaukee was in his name. In 1850 he entered into a partner hip with Frederick Layton, and the new firm began the packing business, which, at the time of dissolution in 1881, had reached proportions equal to any house west of Cincinnati. For three years Mr. Plankinton continued alone, and in 1864 united with P. D. Shot Gun Shells. Here is a story of a practical joke rinyed by an ex-Confedrate officer, Col-cuel Aylett, upon some of his old comanions in arms. He had a company of triends at his country place, near Rich sond, and one evening a display of fire-sories was announced. Toward the close the evening Colonel Aylett called me and two or three young fellows to him, and said: "I want you to help me fool one of the old soldiers, if you will."

Of course we jumped at the chance, and saked for orders.
"What I mean to do," he said, "is to
