FOUND DEAD.

Out on the waters found floating,

Only a frail lamb that wandered

From the shepherd's fold away.

Only a Magdalen's clay-

Over the fair face disfigured

Over the passionless bosom

Over the violet eyes-

Over her sinful head,

Cling the wet carls of gold;

The wan, white hands enfold.

Cather the winding-sheet bigher

That even in death seems holding

But lay her away to slumber,

Far from our beautiful dead,

Where never a daisy shall blossor

What right has she to the sunshine-

To the songs of singing birds-

Lured by tempting words?

Give her a place in the shadow,

Shall fall like pitying tear-drops

God may forgive her-but never

Man, who has led her astray,

May make for her spirit room,

Shall fall like pitying tear-drops

REFLECTIONS.

A man cannot be truly eloquent

Can look with a throb of pity

Upon her Magdalen's clay;

Even a rose-tree to bloom.

Over her bed of shame.

She who has wandered in by-ways,

Where only the dew and the rain

A gleum of the June-time skies;

A Burglar Captured.

This morning about two o'clock, John Wood, the well-known plumber who resides on Main Street, was awakened by hearing glass break. On getting out of bed he received a blow on the head. He immediately grappled with burglar, and after a terrible struggle succeeded in holding until his wife obtained help. On being searched at the station, Mr. Wood's watch and wallet was found on his person. He gave the name of Robert Terry.
