TEACHING CROWS TO TALK.

They Discount Parrots and Are a Heap More Fun.

Crows make very amusing pets for any one who can put up with their innate spirit of deviltry, and besides that they can be taught to talk more distinctly than most parrots. It is a common idea among the country people that they will not talk unless their tongues are cut at a certain tender age. Be that as it may, I have heard crows talk excellently that never had their tongues cut, and some whose tongues are cut never will talk at all. I always take my chances without cutting, and out of nearly a dozen that I have owned only two proved devoid of a bump of language.

To be sure of having a good, affectionate crow, take him from the nest as soon after hatching as you can find him. If it is the first of the brood hatched, all the better. How are you to tell that? Why, if you find one baby crow and four eggs in the nest, does not that settle the question beyond dispute? Name him as soon as you get home. It is a good plan to have a family consultation on this subject, for a rechristening is fatal to the proper education of your callow charge. Always call him by name whenever you feed him. He will learn his name before he knows what feathers are, and respond to it whenever he hears it uttered. Feed until half fledged, on meat and water—regular "chicken dough"—and if any "chicken sicknesses" come on consult the "chicken doctor." In other words, the young crow must be raised on about the same diet as a young chicken. Feed plenty and feed often. A crow's nest is the best thing thing to keep him in during his infantile days. If you haven't one make a substitute. As he grows in strength and is able to travel about a little he needs more variety in his food, but be careful he does not swallow anything that is very salt. Dump a handful of gravel down his mouth occasionally, and give him minnows and frogs once in a while. Swallowing his first live frog seems to give a young crow a most agreeable new sensation. Do not be in any hurry about making him bathe. He will wash himself whenever it is necessary, and if taken and plunged into cold water while the pin feathers are full of blood, it may cause him to literally "catch his death of cold." As soon as he is well on the wing his language lessons should begin. Shut him up in a darkened room when well fed, and begin by whispering the word or phrase you wish him to learn. If he seems to be listening repeat it a little louder, and continue until he either grows restless or goes to sleep. It will be but a few minutes. Repeat the same lesson and nothing else every time you visit him or pass within hearing for a week or 10 days, and if your crow doesn't talk in that time he probably never will. Generally they will begin to practice to themselves the first or second day of their imprisonment, but once a word or phrase is learned others will quickly follow. If really talented, you can make your crow appear to answer a question. For instance, call his name gently and add "what," in a loud, emphatic tone. Soon, when his name is called, he will respond "what" with just the same emphasis and inflection that he has heard you give. Then, again, if you say "It's dinner time" whenever you feed him, some day he will walk into the house hungry and gravely announce, "It's dinner time."

As he grows in years and knowledge your crow will develop a variety of thieving and amusing tricks, too numerous to mention. He will cultivate the most friendly acquaintance with some people and show unaccountable animosity toward others. He will attend you part way whenever you leave home, and if your hours of return are regular, will probably meet you at the same spot and welcome you exuberantly. Every time he fails to do so look for him at once, he will either be in some utterly entrancing bit of mischief or else dead.

Catering Thackeray.

Mrs. Ritchie, Thackeray's daughter, who has been giving in Macmillan's Magazine some interesting recollections of literary life, says that she has a dim but most delightful remembrance of a party at the house of Dickens, when his children and she herself were very little. She recalls her admiration of the white satin shoes and long white sashes worn by the Dickens girls, and the fact that her own sash was a bright plaid of red and blue, a combination which she "could not bear." The evening passed, happily, radiantly, and at its close came an incident which brings tears to the eyes of those who love and reverence the satirical but always warm hearted novelist.

Only this do I remember very clearly, that we had danced and supped, and danced again, and that we were all standing in a hall lighted and hung with bunches of Christmas green, and as I have said, everything seemed altogether magnificent and important, more magnificent and important every minute, for as the evening went on, more and more people kept arriving.

The hall was crowded, and the broad staircase was lined with little boys—thousands of little boys, whose heads, arms, and legs were waving about together. They were making a great noise, and talking and shouting, and the eldest son of the house seemed to be marshalling them.

Presently, their noise became a cheer, and then another, and we looked up, and saw that our own father had come to fetch us, and that his white head was there above the others.

Then came a third final, ringing cheer, and some one went up to him—it was Mr. Dickens himself—and laughed, and said, quickly, "That is for you!"

My father, surprised, pleased, touched, settled his spectacles, and nodded gravely to the boys.

HUDSON BAY.

If You Pause to Consider Its Size, You Will Be Astounded.

Did you ever compare Hudson Bay with other and lesser bodies of water and land? If you never did, and will take the trouble to do so, you can not help uttering exclamations of amazement when the immensity of this great inland ocean dawns upon your understanding. From Fury Strait on the north to the most southern indentation at the mouth of Abbitibbe River, it is exactly 1,380 miles, while the width from Button's Bay to the mouth of Whale River is but little under 700 miles.

It is as long as the first Atlantic cable, and nearly as wide as the combined lengths of Lakes Huron, Erie, and Ontario. It extends over 12 degrees of latitude, and covers not less than 500,000 square miles, including more territory within its limits than can be found within the borders of Great Britain and Ireland, Sweden, Norway, Greece, Switzerland, Denmark, the Netherlands, and Belgium combined. It drains 3,000,000 square miles of territory, receives rivers from the Rocky Mountains, Labrador, the Arctic regions, and some which have their source almost within the limits of the United States.—St. Louis Republic.

Headache

Usually results from a deranged stomach or a sluggish liver. In either case, an aperient is needed. Ayer's Pills, the mildest and most reliable cathartic in use, correct all irregularities of the stomach, liver, and bowels, and, in a brief time, relieve the most distressing headache. These pills are highly recommended by the profession, and the demand for them is universal.

NAMES FOR CARS.

Their Choice a Task That Worries Railroad Officials.

There is a young man in one of the offices of each of the great sleeping car companies who is engaged every day, except Sunday, of course, in bending over an atlas searching for suitable names for the sleeping, dining, and parlor coaches which are turned out by the company. It is no small matter when you come to understand that every name must signify something, and that there are already on the road many hundreds of such coaches and new ones being turned out at the rate of two or three hundred a year. When the first sleepers were built the owners took the alphabet, lettering the first one "A," and so on until the alphabet run out. Then commenced the search for names. The first sleepers to be named were those run on the Pennsylvania limited between New York and Chicago. They were named for the various nations, America being the first one chosen. The original sleepers are those first named: America, England, France, Russia, Scotland, Germany, and so on.

The next names were taken from the various towns through which the road runs. If the road was in Ohio, for example, the sleepers on such roads were named for some of the principal towns and cities in that State. This plan, however, was soon deemed unadvisable, as it sometimes becomes necessary to transfer the sleepers to roads in other States. Then came the plan of naming the coaches after the sections of the country. Those which run on the roads of the West were given Indian names.

As far as possible it is now the rule for the names of the palace coaches to bear some relation to the nature of the business in the section where sleepers run. For instance, on the roads running out of Washington there are such names on the sleepers as "Senator," "Diplomate," "Congress," etc.

On a few lines which traverse noted battlefields some of the sleepers are named in honor of famous generals. The books of one of the principal companies show that Achilles, Ajax, and Ulysses have been honored on wheels.

The present is an age of colleges. These institutions have associated with their curriculum boating, football, and other athletic exercises. This same company concluded for awhile to embalm the names of the leading literary institutions by painting their names on their sleeping cars. This was the most popular idea which the company had adopted.

But there is a limit to noted schools in America, just as there is a limit to the alphabet, and it was soon discovered that there were not enough colleges to go round, or, which was the same thing, there were too many sleeping cars.

Then commenced the hunt on the atlas for names. The system of naming is now followed in this manner: A young man is employed to make out an alphabetical list from the atlas. Having selected his name, he goes to the root of it, and ascertains its origin and significance. When a list is prepared it is passed to the vice president of the company, who adopts or rejects.

Sometimes suggestions are sent in by outsiders. They are filed away, and if any of the names thus suggested are adopted in the course of construction they find their way to the gate of the traveling public.

Dining cars are named, as far as the names signify, for rivers, lakes, and bays. In the West for Indian chiefs. Parlor cars are nearly always feminine in nomenclature. The mythological deities on the feminine side have been liberally honored. The names of some of the more notable female characters in history and fiction have been transferred to these palace cars of the rail.

The instruction to the young man whose business it is to keep up the list is to get short names where they have any significance, keeping in mind at the same time those which are most euphoneous.

This is a busy age. It not only costs less to paint a short name, but you do not want to stop to read or write such a word as Assiniboine when there are so many shorter ones, and ones which are so much smoother to speak and which mean more.

The naming of these cars is no small job, and the man who has triplets to christen is not half so much worried about names as the vice president of a sleeping car company.—Chicago Tribune.

THE CZAR'S SHOT PROOF CAR.

How the Emperor of Russia Travels Among His Loving Subjects.

When the czar travels in Russia the precautions taken for his safety could not be greater if he were in the enemy's country, writes a foreign correspondent. A battalion of infantry is detailed for every two miles of distance, and allowing 500 men as the effective force of each battalion, every spot of ground on both sides of the track is covered by sentinels within easy distance of each other. The czar is suddenly whirled off to the station accompanied by a chosen twelve of his bodyguard, without pomp or circumstance, swiftly and silently. The czar always travels in a train of five carriages. His carriage is built in a peculiar style.

The windows, while ample for light, are high, so that a person sitting down is invisible from the outside, and the sides of the car are fortified with plates of steel concealed in the ornamental woodwork, but amply strong to resist a bullet. There are two sentry boxes in the carriage, one at each end and each looking out at an opposite side from the other. The guard men on duty in these apartments are shut in from any observation of the interior of the carriage, but at intervals of about two feet, the whole length of the saloon, are electric buttons communicating with the guard chambers, as well as with the two carriages, one containing the suite, and the other, in the rear, occupied by the guardsmen not on duty. So far, therefore, as the train itself is concerned, the czar could be no more secure in St. Petersburg.

The train speeds along to its destination without a halt, except on account of accident. At a distance of not less than five miles ahead is a pioneer train, in which the imperial director of railways and the chief engineer of the particular railway on which the czar is traveling, always ride. As the pilot train whizzes by the reserves along the line rush to arms and guard the sides of the railway, waiting until the imperial train has passed, so that the spectacle is present of continuous lines of soldiery for hundreds of miles. Arrived at the end of his journey, the czar is escorted to the quarters intended for the imperial family.

The streets are guarded by special constables, in the attire of citizens. Every property holder has been called upon to supply one or more of these men at his own expense to do duty when the sovereign makes a public appearance. The constables average one in ten of the crowd that throngs the streets, and being in ordinary dress, they can mingle with the people, note what is said, and perhaps do something that will obtain them regular employment among the secret police. With one-tenth the population engaged as spies upon the remainder, with troops enough concentrated to stand a formidable siege, and his faithful guardsmen dogging every step, the czar goes through the forms of a visit to the ancient capital of Russia, or whatever city he may choose to honor.

Worn-out, "run-down," feeble women, need Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It builds them up. It's a powerful, restorative tonic, or strength-giver—free from alcohol and injurious drugs. The entire system is renewed and invigorated. It improves digestion, enriches the blood, dispels aches and pains, gives refreshing sleep, and restores flesh and strength. As a soothing nervine, it allays and subdues hysteria, spasms, and all the nervous symptoms commonly attendant upon functional and organic disease. It's the only guaranteed medicine for women. It does what is promised—or it asks nothing. It gives satisfaction, in every case, or the money paid for it is refunded.

That's the way its makers prove their faith in it. Contains no alcohol to inebriate; no syrup or sugar to derange digestion; a legitimate medicine, not a beverage. Purely vegetable and perfectly harmless in any condition of the system.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE.

DELVINTON, Pa., Nov. 21, '90.

DR. B. J. KENDALL CO.,

Gents—I would like to make known to those who are almost terminated to use Kendall's Spavin Cure the fact that I think it is the most excellent Liniment I have used on a Blood Spavin. The horse went on three legs for three years when I commenced to use your Kendall's Spavin Cure. I used but little on the horse and have worked him for three years since and he has not been lame.

Yours truly, WM. A. CURL.

GERMANTOWN, N. Y., Nov. 5, 1890.

DR. B. J. KENDALL CO.,

Gents: In praise of Kendall's Spavin Cure I will say, that a year ago I had a valuable young horse become very lame, hock enlarged and swollen. The foreman about here (we have no Veterinary Surgeon here) pronounced the lameness Blood Spavin or Thoroughpin, they all said no there was no cure for it. He became worthless, and I considered him almost worthless. A friend told me of the merits of your Kendall's Spavin Cure, so I bought a bottle, and I could see very plainly great improvements immediately from its use, and before the bottle was used up I was satisfied that it was doing him a world of good. I bought a second bottle, and before it was used up my horse was cured and has been on the farm doing hearty work all the season since that spell, showing no more signs of it. I consider your Kendall's Spavin Cure a valuable medicine, and it should be in every stable in the land. Respectfully yours,

EUGENE DEWITT.
