The sounds were of such an unusual character that the two women became satisfied that they were criss of terror, Mrs. MoDonald, armed with a pitchfork. and her eller, carrying an ax, hurried to the barnyant There they found an enormous bear standing defaully between the prostrate hodies of the two steers, each of which he had relied to the ground and killed. The other cattle were huddled in terror in a corner of the yard. The bear growled and snarled and showed his growled and snarld and showed his tooth as the women approached, but, in spite of his terrible front and threaten-ing attitude, the sight of the steers lying dead on the ground was more than the plucky young women could stand, and they runned with desperate intent on the smaller base.

nurling bear. THEY BILLED THE DEAK.

THEY EXILED THE DEAR. "Mrs. McDonaid charged with her pitchfork and thrust its sharp, long times deep into the bear's neck. The bear gave a howl of pain, and striking the handle of the pitchfork a powerful blow with one forepaw he wrenched it from Mrs. McDonaid's hands and cent it fly-fng across the barnyard. While the bear was doing that Miss. McDonaid pitched into him with the ax, and at the first blow disabled one of his terrible forelega. The bear turned on her and he rained The bear turned on her and she rained blows thick and fast upon him as she backed slowly away. Mrs. McDonald

The battle was not of long furnation, for the matr blows of the are in the stills hands Impy blows of the are in the girl's hands and the deep and painful stabs inflicted by Mrs. McDonald with her pitchfork scon had their effect on the bear, big and tough as he was, and in ten minutes and cough as he was, and in ten minutes after the fight began he was stretched dead by the side of his victims, the two steers. The two nervy women had their clothing nearly stripped from them by the claws of the bear, but beyond a few scratches they were not injured. "They were not on the scene in time to eave the valued steers but their pluck to save the valued steers, but their pluck in avenuing the death of the cattle aroused so much enthusiasm and ad-miration at the settlement that a purso was raised among the inmhermen and hunters, with which another yoke of these was bought and presented to Mrs. McDonald and her brave little sister.

ANOTHER WOMAN'S DEAL "In that same Molus river wilderness, hus nearer the headwaters, lives during the summer and sometimes as late as the middle of November, if the weather is not too sovere, a family named Baker. They are Boston people, but on account of the health of one of the family, who is benefited by the spruce and pine air of the region, they sprud most of the year in their commodious cabin in the Molus

"Baker's wife is a pretty woman of about thirty, and has learned to handle the rife like an old woodsman. She in-sisted on unaking one of a party that had formed to rout out and kill a big bear that had been located in a swamp amile or so from the cabin. She was stationed by the guide at a spot where in his judgld not be likely to come out when the dogs got after him, as he had no faith in a woman's ability to stand and shoot at a bear as it Conneed into sight out of a thicket. "His judgment was right, for when the dogs got on the track of the bear Mrs. Balter heard them taking a course if her majesty doesn't do needlework, and a aitting room where there might be an ordinary writing desk, a bookcase with some well thumbed volumes or a that would fotch bruin out of the swamp at a place where she would be unable to see it or get a shot. But she wasn't there to be fooled, and she started on a run with some well thumbed volumes or a chair—an American rocking ohair even, in which a loving woman had rocked her babies to aleep. The doors were closed on the queen's and prince consort's befroom, but in-genious inquiries caused the old house-keeper to give up their secrets. There was no difference. They lived in there in state, and I began to think my child-ish ideas that kings and queens slept in their crowns was not far wrong.—Eliza-beth B. The bear, a tremendous big fellow, as black as ink, broke through big fellow, as black as ink, broke through the thick bruch on the edge of the swamp, and was putting in his best licks across the opening for cover on the other side. But he never reached cover. Mrs. Baker put one rifle ball close behind his left shouldsr and another through his loins. When the guide, Mr. Baker and another minumber of the party came tearing to the spot, Mrs. Baker was sitting on the carrons of the bars as cool as a concur-Change for a Rest.

These high lights stay by one when the hills and all the ordinary features of that charming Scot-iand melt into the dimmett of memories. One of these summer's high lights was a visit to the queen's private apariments at Windsor. I don't know what red tape and long waiting and diplomatic refer-ence it took to get the permit. I only know that the thoughtful American girl who remembered me and made me one of the four who were to invade the sacred precincts conferred much pleasure on me, and even though we were all so

We looked upon the herd of common-ers who filed by as in the wake of the cicerone, who every hour takes throngs of sightseers through the main part of Windsor castle. Their hands were red with Baedeleric but we loftily ignored gridabooks for one day. There were but three high lights there to remember. One was General Gor to remember. One was General Gor-don's Bible, before which I could have knelt, for it was the well worn book of a soldier who took it into the tented field as his companion.

It was sunny and bright, for some far back English sovereign or his wise gar-dener had, perhaps, evidently believed that with all his possessions there was nothing quits equal to the God given one of sunshine, and so there was a wide strip of the greenest turf in the world on sither side of the drive.
